Firm Date in Exchange for POWs

Nixon to Make Viet Withdrawal Offer

SEN. EDWARD W. BROOKE

(UPI TELEPHOTO)

(Combined Wire Services)

WASHINGTON — President Nixon will announce shortly his willingness to set a date for total U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam once American prisoners of war are released, a high administration official said today.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said Nixon probably would make a public announcement prior to Thursday's weekly session of the Paris peace talks.

Nixon's ambassador to the Paris talks, William J. Porter, conferred with top administration officials in Washington two days last week and again on Monday and returned to Paris today.

The official gave no indication whether Nixon was prepared to set a withdrawal date or whether he would insist that the prisoners be released first.

Both Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said Nixon was prepared to set a date.

Scott said in an interview with UPI that Nixon would offer to get out of Vietnam "lock, stock and barrel" in exchange for a release of POWs.

Scott said the offer would come "well before the elections."

Brooke, in a speech to the Greater Boston Young Republicans Club Monday night, said, "I have heard that we will very soon—and I predict very soon—make an offer to North Vietnam to set a date for withdrawal if they will turn over to us the 1,500 Americans who remain in North Vietnamese prison camps."

Neither Scott nor Brooke cited the source of his information.

President Nixon said in a television interview Jan. 2 that the North Vietnamese in Paris had said "no deal" to a withdrawal-for-prisoners exchange offer. But no such proposal has ever been made at the Paris talks.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., both have said their talks with North Vietnamese negotiators convinced them such a trade is possible.

The North Vietnamese, however, indicated following the Nixon television statement that they were not dropping their insistence that the United States abandon the Saigon government as a part of any settlement.

The U.S. guarantee of support for the Saigon government, often stated by Nixon in the past, was not mentioned in the Jan. 2 interview.

Asked whether by next November "there will be no Americans, land sea or air—no residual force—fighting in support of Laotians, Cambodians or South Vietnamese," Nixon said:

"That depends on one circumstance . . . the situation with regard to our POWs."

The White House said later, however, that the United States was not dropping its support of President Thieu of South Vietnam, but the spokesman stopped short of saying that support had to be in the form of a residual U.S. force in the Southeast Asian country.

Meanwhile, on the war front the U.S. military command today reported more of what it calls protective reaction raids inside North Vietnam and said the latest strikes had brought to eight the number of such attacks since Saturday.

Official spokesmen gave no explanation for the heavy raids into North Vietnam but Air Force spokesmen said a massive buildup of Communist antiaircraft and missile defenses were the reason.

The sources said the Communist air defense buildup had forced the U.S. Air Force to divert some jets that would otherwise be used to bomb trucks on the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos and use them to attack antiaircraft sites.

Military spokesmen in Saigon reported that South Vietnamese troops had discovered a Viet Cong regiment-sized base 30 miles north of Saigon near the French-owned Michelin rubber plantation.

It was the closest to Saigon that such a Communist installation has been discovered in more than two years.

Military sources said Viet Cong commandos blew up a barracks full of sleeping South Vietnamese militiamen just outside the big U.S. air and Navy base at Cam Ranh Bay 185 miles northeast of Saigon early today, the report said. 18 South Vietnamese were killed in the attack and half the so-called Cam Ranh sector headquarters was destroyed.

In Laos, government sources said Laotian troops had regained control of Skyline Ridge, the high ground overlooking the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA)-operated base at Long Cheng.

In the growing air-ground duel along the North Vietnamese border, Navy A6 Intruder jets and A7 Corsairs fired radar-homing Shrike missiles at antiaircraft rocket sites near Ban Karai and Mu Gia passes Sunday and Monday, military spokesmen said.

The strikes, 45 and 85 miles northwest of the DMZ respectively, are the two main gateways for southbound truck traffic on the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Air Force F105 Wild Weasels protecting an RF4 Phantom photo reconnaissance plane fired Shrikes at a missile site northwest of the port of Dong Hoi Monday.

The South Vietnamese installation attacked by Viet Cong commandos before dawn today is adjacent to the American bases at Cam Ranh Bay.

Central Hudson Planning Power Plant in County

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation outlined plans today for a new power plant to be located on the former Terry Brickyard property in the Town of Ulster just south of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge.

The utility has been conducting environmental tests on air and water at the 93-acre site since the summer of 1971, a spokesman said. The environmental tests will determine whether or not the new plant will be built.

Four air pollution monitoring stations have been set up, two on the project site, one at Kingston Point in the City of Kingston and one across the river, at the eastern approaches of the bridge. River water is also being sampled in addition to test borings on the site.

"We're now in the data gathering phase," a spokesman for the utility told The Freeman today. "We have to determine what the existing air and water quality is and then determine what the effects would be of locating a plant there. It's part of the process of determining a suitable location."

The tests are required by the State Department of Environmental Conservation and approval from that agency must be forthcoming before any construction can begin. Those tests will continue until at least mid-1972 when the utility's option on the property runs out.

Central Hudson, according to the spokesman, has not determined how large the power plant will be. "The size would be determined by the results of the air and water studies."

The plant will be conventional (non-nuclear) and will use "fossil fuel," either coal or oil.

The stacks on the plant will have pollution control devices on them. "There are very definite laws and standards on discharges of stacks," the spokesman said.

The studies of the water in the area will determine current marine life and the possible effect of a new plant on it. The plant will use water from the Hudson River to cool its generators and discharge warm water back into the river. The effects of thermal pollution, then, would be a key factor in the decision on building the plant.

Special

The future of the whole project, a spokesman indicated, will revolve around its impact on the environment. Conclusive data on those tests is still not available, The Freeman was told.

The air pollution tests are the first extensive samplings in an area that (residents) claim is already subject to heavy air pollution from the Hudson Cement Plant in the City of Kingston. Complaints on air pollution from Hudson Cement smoke stacks go back at least five years and have been reviewed by the Common Council, the Ulster County Legislature and the State Department of Environmental Conservation.

Early last year, Assemblyman H. Clark Bell met with representatives of Hudson Cement and the Department of Environmental Conservation and was successful in working out a schedule of voluntary compliance by the company.

Bell said today that work has been continuing on schedule and that he will be meeting with Alexander Rihm of the Department of Environmental Conservation early next month to review both the Hudson Cement case and the Central Hudson situation.

Central Hudson, which services some 175,000 electric customers in the Mid-Hudson area, has embarked on an extensive building program in the past five years. The fourth generator at its Danskammer Plant near Newburgh was completed in the late 60s and the first 600-kilowatt generator at its Roseton Plant will go into operation late this year. The second 600-kilowatt generator at the $223,000,000 Roseton Plant will go into operation late next year. Central Hudson is building the plant along with Niagara-Mohawk and Con Edison.

Central Hudson is now in the process of issuing mortgage bonds for $20 million and 500,000 shares of common stock to pay for its expansion programs. "Use of electricity by our customers is growing each year," the spokesman said. "We must make plans to supply that power during the '70s."

SHOICHI YOKOI

... 30 years ago and today

(UPI TELEPHOTO)

Faithful Japanese Soldier Gives Up...28 Years Later

AGANA, Guam (UPI)—The Japanese imperial army troops who occupied Guam in World War II were under orders never to surrender to the Americans who stormed the Pacific island on July 21, 1944. Sgt. Shoichi Yokoi was faithful to that command for nearly 30 years.

It was a chance meeting in the fading light of dusk with two hunters that managed what the U.S. 3rd Marine Division and the Army's 77th Infantry had not accomplished—the capture of Yokoi.

The hunters surprised Yokoi, 56, as he was tending a homemade shrimp trap in the Talofofo River 20 miles outside Agana Monday night.

Yokoi told how he had survived for 28 years in the jungles of Guam on a diet of nuts, breadfruit, mangos, papaya, shrimp, snails, rats and frogs. He drew the line at snakes.

A tailor when he was drafted into the Japanese army in 1941, Yokoi said he weaved a burlap-like cloth from tree bark fiber and fashioned himself trousers and a jacket. He said he used a pair of scissors he carried through the war to tailor the clothes and to cut his hair. He was heavily bearded.

He said he heard of neither the atomic bomb nor television and started in incredulity when told that a jet plane would return him to his hometown of Nagoya in three hours.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government said it would pay Yokoi's fare to Japan and James Shintaku, honorary Japanese consul on the island, said he would make travel arrangements. A spokesman for the Japanese Ministry of Welfare said there was no doubt the man on Guam was the same soldier reported dead on Sept. 4, 1944.

Yokoi said other Japanese troops scattered into the wilderness of Guam when the Americans recaptured the island but that he found his last two companions dead in a cave eight years ago.

"I believe they died of starvation," he said. "I got sick a few months after I came here," he said. "However, I pulled out of it. Another time I was ill after I caught a pig and apparently didn't cook it very well. Another time I became numb and feared I was starving." His family in Japan was notified in September of 1944 that he had been killed in action. Both his parents are dead.

His only surviving relative is Osamau Yokoi, 42, a cousin. Yokoi said he knew the war was over at least on Guam because of leaflets he found scattered through the jungle. But he held out, fearing he would be executed if he surrendered.

Doctors at Guam Memorial Hospital said Yokoi's blood pressure and heart pulse are normal but he is anemic. His hands are heavily calloused. "This is like a dream to me," Yokoi said. "I am only afraid I will wake up."

Girl From Staatsburg Intent Over Application for Annapolis

By JON POWERS

STAATSBURG After setting the United States Naval Academy on its ear Monday, a 17-year-old Staatsburg girl still insists that she's serious about attending the all-male officers' school at Annapolis.

If Barbara Jo Brimmer succeeds, she will have invaded one of the last remaining bastions of male supremacy, a thought that leaves many midshipmen cold.

Barbara, a 1971 graduate of Hyde Park's Roosevelt High School, was nominated to attend Annapolis on Monday by Senator Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.). But Navy spokesmen are quick to point out that nomination does not guarantee admission, and that a vast majority of applicants will be "weeded out" by the time the newest plebe class enters in May.

Barbara's credentials, how- ever, are sound. According to a spokesman at Javits' Washington, D.C. office, she scored more than 90 per cent on her College Boards, is a member of Point.

Now a freshman at Russell Sage College in Troy, Barbara admits that her admission to Annapolis might cause some "problems," but she has adamantly refused to buckle under the pressure brought to bear by some of the Navy's biggest guns, including Secretary of the Navy John Chaffee, who has steadfastly opposed co-education of Annapolis.

Barbara says she wants to become a Navy nurse, and that at Annapolis she can obtain the best possible training. A Navy regulation that prohibits women on warships is no deterrent, she says, "because I can always serve on a hospital ship."

Court Kills Residency Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York's welfare residency requirement had a brief life last year before federal courts threw it out—a decision affirmed Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court.

During the three weeks the requirement was in effect, very few persons were turned down for aid, said the State Social Services Department, which does not have the exact number. They were told to reapply.

Social Services commissioner resigns under attack. Story on Page 5.

The law would have affected about 12,000 of the state's 1.8 million welfare population, department officials estimated, and saved up to $12 million out of a state welfare budget of $1.3 billion. Rockefeller was disappointed by the Supreme Court decision and said it pointed out the need for a national takeover of welfare.

"The Supreme Court decision," he said, "leaves unanswered the fact that a needy family can be starved out of one state to become a disproportionate responsibility of the people of another state."

last year was a turnabout from a position taken in 1960 when he vetoed a similar measure.

"The continued influx of persons in need of public assistance," he said last year, "threatens the capacity of state and local governments to continue to provide and finance adequate levels of public services for those residents here as well as those coming into the state."

Shirley Chisholm Enters Presidential Sweepstakes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, who has been informally seeking the Democratic presidential nomination through much of her freshman term as the nation's first black congresswoman, made it official today.

The fiery former schoolteacher from the Bedford-Stuyvesant slums held a news conference at the Concord Baptist Church in Brooklyn to announce her candidacy.

Mrs. Chisholm, 47, who went to Congress after serving four years in the state legislature, has made no bones about her intentions in numerous campaign speeches around the country for the past several months.

On Jan. 2, she told a Broadway theater audience during an invitation appearance: "I dare to run for the presidency," she added, "The hour has come in America when we can't be passive recipients."

She was equally frank about her intentions at Jacksonville, Fla., a few days later when she described herself as the only "unique candidate" in the Democratic race and vowed she wouldn't drop out of the competition she hadn't yet officially entered.

Saying she had been urged to drop out to avoid splitting the liberal vote with New York Mayor John V. Lindsay and Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, Mrs. Chisholm told a Florida college rally: "I'm black and I'm a woman. I can go into New Mexico and Texas and talk to the Chicanos in their own language. Why not ask Lindsay and McGovern to drop out?"

In addition to Lindsay and McGovern, others already in the race for the Democratic nomination are Sens. Vance Hartke of Indiana, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

In other political developments: JACKSON—The Washington senator told a crowd of about 500 at a reception in Memphis, Tenn., that he opposes "massive school busing for the sake of achieving some sort of racial balance. He drew applause from blacks and whites when he said, "It isn't the bus ride, out what is at the end of the bus ride that counts." He campaigns today in Memphis and Jackson, Tenn.

WALLACE — Speaking at Tampa, Fla., the Alabama governor charged that some of his Democratic rivals "are telling it like it ain't. Everyone of them has been giving your money away." He announced his campaign slogan: "Big government, go home where you belong." His audience, less than the 8,000 to 10,000 his aides had predicted, gave him standing ovations several times.

YORTY—One of his aides said in Tallahassee, Fla., that the Los Angeles mayor will hire a lawyer this week in an effort to get his name off the March 14 Florida presidential primary ballot. Yorty's name was entered against his wishes. The aide, Sam Bretzenfeld, said Yorty wants to pick his own primaries.

HARTKE—The Indiana senator told a civic club in Jacksonville, Fla., that President Nixon instituted wage and price controls out of panic after 2½ years of economic gymnastics. He said, "I think President Nixon is a 100 per cent failure as president."

MUSKIE — Boston's Mayor Kevin H. White announced his support for the Maine senator. And former Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle announced he would be a Muskie-pledged candidate in his state's primary election May 2.

Nader Asks Milk Rollback

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Consumer groups led by Ralph Nader want a U.S. District Court to order a rollback of government milk support prices, contending they were hiked to current levels as a payoff for $322,500 raised for President

Nixon's re-election campaign by three groups of dairy farmers. A suit seeking a rollback in the support prices was filed Monday in Washington. An increase of 27 cents a hundredweight in government price supports for milk was ordered March 25 by then Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin. Only 13 days earlier, Hardin had ruled there would be no increase in support prices, but that decision inspired protests from the dairy industry that were directed to the White House and Congress. Filing the suit were Nader and his Public Citizen Inc., the Federation of Homemakers, and the Consumers Association of the District of Columbia. Named defendants were Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and the Commodity Credit Corporation, which directs the price support program.

Nader and the others charged the boost in support prices had increased retail prices for dairy products by 3 to 4 per cent.

The suit said Nixon was not the only recipient of campaign contributions. It alleged that more than 50 senators and House members of both parties had received more than $150,000 in the last two years.

Among them, it said, were Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, who received $10,625, and Edmund S. Muskie, who received $1,600.

Air Force to Burn Plant Killer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force proposes to burn in Texas or Illinois 2.3 million gallons of a plant killer that was banned in Vietnam after tests showed it may have caused animal birth defects.

The disposal methods were proposed in an environmental impact statement filed earlier this month with federal and state agencies in Texas, Illinois and Mississippi.

The herbicide, code-named Orange, would be burned in commercial incinerators in Deer Park, Tex., or at Saugeat, Ill., across the Mississippi River from St. Louis.

The proposal, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press following inquiries, is subject to comment by the agencies to which it was submitted. They have 30 days to respond. If significant controversy is aroused, the Air Force may hold a public hearing before turning in the final impact statement to the Environmental Protection Agency.

"This action is not considered to have an adverse effect on the environment," the Air Force said. "The probable environmental consequences of the proposed action will be minor or insignificant."

Orange was the defoliant most commonly used in Vietnam to strip away jungle cover concealing enemy troops and supplies.

The Defense Department banned its use in 1970, shortly after the Agriculture Department banned the herbicide 2,4,5-T—the principal ingredient of Orange—around homes, water areas and food crops. This followed laboratory tests indicating it retarded growth and caused birth defects in rodents.

The Air Force was left with 2.3 million gallons of Orange worth $16.9 million, most of which is stored in 55-gallon steel drums in Vietnam.

Although two sites are under consideration for disposal, the Air Force has not made the final selection and no contracts have been let.

Under the Air Force's draft statement, the herbicide would be incinerated at a rate of 2,000 to 5,000 gallons a day, producing a total of 44.6 million pounds of carbon dioxide, a nontoxic gas, and 12.4 million pounds of hydrogen chloride, which would be converted into sodium chloride, or common salt.

Canadian Air Controllers Reject Tentative Offer

OTTAWA (UPI)—Air controllers overwhelmingly rejected a tentative agreement late Monday, dimming hopes for a settlement of the strike that has crippled Canada's air traffic for nine days.

The 1,600 members of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association (CATCA) voted 85 per cent against accepting the government's offer, presented early Saturday. The vote was 1,394 to 247.

The vote raised the possibility of government intervention, according to official sources who said legislation might be necessary as a last resort to end the costly walkout. C. M. Drury, president of the Treasury Board, said early today he was "sharply disappointed" at the controller's rejection but added he felt "the time has not yet come to summon Parliament and legislate them back to work."

"While we are very conscious, indeed, of the damage being done to the public, to a variety of interest in Canada by this strike," he said, "We must exhaust all other possibilities of settling it before we resort to, in effect, withdrawal of the right to strike."

The walkout has grounded all commercial air service in Canada and has cost the airlines some $18 million. In addition, 14,000 employees have been laid off.

Year of 'Decision' for Library

KINGSTON, County legislator Clarence Raichle (R City) was present at the meeting to review need for the county to participate in the library funding.

Mrs. Rita Jackaway, newly elected president of the library association board said that the

When the support was not forthcoming the one-year grant was not renewed. It is hoped that such county support will be possible in the near future, Mrs. Jackaway said.

At the annual meeting three trustees were named for three year terms. New board members are Mrs. Ruth Poley and Michael Dvorocik. Mrs. Jackaway was reelected for a second term.

Board officers named in addition to the new president were Donald Sweeney vice president; Len Cane, secretary and Mrs. Emily Johnson, treasurer.

Two retiring trustees are Mrs. Ruth Gold who has served for nine years and Robert O'Reilly, treasurer.

Approximately 30 persons attended the meeting and there was lively discussion on the review of the budget and possible avenues of funding.

Local History Room in Library At Ulster Community Campus

STONE RIDGE A local history room has been set-up in the MacDonald DeWitt Library at the Stone Ridge Campus of Ulster County Community College and efforts are under way to enlarge the library's local history project.

The project is in charge of Mrs. Thomas Carroll, an assistant librarian, who now is working to build up a major local history collection at the library. "Our library is here to serve the college community," said Mrs. Carroll, "and we're hopeful that people in the community will donate historical works so our collection can be enlarged. Mrs. Carroll says she hopes to develop a comprehensive collection of Ulster County historical materials including the settlement and early history of the region, transportation, business and industry, agriculture, education and the arts in the 19th and 20th centuries.

While the local history collection is intended to offer students and faculty opportunities for research, it is also available for use by interested county residents. "The College Library already owns some important materials of historical interest," said Mrs. Carroll, "but many other desirable materials are missing from the collection." Mrs. Carroll has given members of the board of trustees at the college lists of desired materials and asked them to assist in this project by encouraging gifts to the library from individuals in the county. Mrs. Carroll says she feels the library has a responsibility to preserve the records of the community in which it is located.

The college has encouraged community interest in local history through a series of regional history workshops sponsored jointly by UCCC and the Ulster County Historical Society. Mrs. Carroll says she feels now is a good time to build up the College's local history collection with the coming approach of the Revolutionary War Bicentennial Celebration. "This celebration should increase appreciably the interest in local history over the next several years," she added.

Six Area Girls to Compete For Title of Apple Queen

KINGSTON Girls from six area high schools will compete Wednesday for the title of Apple Queen of the 107th annual Eastern Meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society.

Contestants, all members of the junior classes of their high schools, are Jeanine Rua, John A. Coleman High School, Kingston; Judy Erchen, Highland Central High School; Joan Tarasowicz, Rondout Valley Central High School; Elisa Levine, Ellenville High School; Gwen Trautman, Marlboro Central High School; and Tracy Clark, Kingston High School.

The contest is being sponsored by the Kingston Rotary Club and the Interact Club of Kingston High School to call attention to the Kingston area as the center of the largest MacIntosh apple growing region in the country. The contest will be held at 11 a.m. in the Governor Clinton Hotel in Kingston with members of the Horticultural Society serving as judges. All six contestants and their parents will be the guests of the Rotary Club at a luncheon which follows in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

In addition to representing the Horticultural Society at the show in the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue, the winner will receive a $50 savings bond from the Kingston Rotary Club, a $25 savings bond from the Kingston High School Interact Club, and a gift from the Horticultural Society banquet in the guest of honor at the Horticultural Society banquet in the Governor Clinton Hotel at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Volunteers Still Needed For Bottle, Glass Drive

KINGSTON Volunteers are still needed to assist the Environmental Task Force in its bottle and glass drive which begins Saturday.

More important to Task Force members, however, is that the volunteers they do have are kept busy during the five-day drive. Officials are hoping for overwhelming community support of the venture and urge county residents to continue to save their glassware for this and future collections.

The drive will begin Saturday, and will run through Wednesday of next week. The collection depot will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day of the drive.

The approaching drive represents the first time that the Task Force has instituted a county-wide recycling effort for glasses and bottles. It has prompted cooperation from a number of public and private individuals and groups.

All townships and school districts in the county have been alerted to the drive by Albert Cawein, public information director for Ulster County, urging their cooperation and support; local National Guard units have been instrumental in obtaining a site for the depot; Hertz Rent A Car in Kingston has indicated it will provide whatever trucks are needed to transport the collected glassware, at no charge; Ertel Engineering Corp. will provide a glass-smashing machine; the Ulster County Temporary Manpower Council will provide seven workers to assist in glass-smashing operations during each day of the drive, and Charles Cole, superintendent of Kingston's Department of Public Works will lend equipment to the drive.

The recycling depot will be established at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue, less than one-half mile from its intersection with Albany Avenue. A subdepot will be established in Port Ewen Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon only at the Grand Union parking lot, and Task Force officials are urging groups in surrounding communities to establish their own collection points to save residents the trip to Kingston. All types of glassware will be collected. Bottles and jars should be clean, with the metal strips and rings removed. Labels do not have to be removed and the bottles do not have to be separated by color.

Wyman Sidesteps Showdown Battle

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Embattled state welfare chief George Wyman has sidestepped a showdown fight with legislative critics over the way he runs the billion dollar state welfare system. He quit.

His letter of resignation Monday said, "It is with regret that I note that differences have arisen over the confirmation of my recess appointment."

Monday was the final day for Gov. Rockefeller to submit Wyman's name to the Senate for confirmation. He made the appointment last summer while the legislature was out of session.

Wyman's critics, led by Sen. William T. Smith, R-Big Flats, had promised to fight the confirmation.

The resignation touched off speculation that 30-year-old

Barry Van Lare, appointed last June to a new No. 2 spot under Wyman, would succeed his boss.

However, an aide of the governor denied these reports, saying "the governor doesn't know who he's going to appoint."

Rockefeller wrote Wyman that "while it has been my intention to submit your name for confirmation by the Senate, I understand your desire to avoid any controversy that would detract from the real issues involved in bringing about modernization of welfare programs in the state and nationwide."

Wyman has headed the department since Sept. 1, 1962, when the Social Welfare Board first appointed him. Part of a welfare reform plan enacted last year gave the governor the power to appoint the welfare director, with Senate confirmation required.

This section admittedly was aimed at Wyman.

Assemblyman James Emery, R-Geneseo, vice-chairman of the legislature's welfare study committee, said at the time, "Obviously, if we felt he was properly administering welfare, we would not have put it in the bill."

Of the possibility of Van Lare succeeding Wyman, Smith said, "I think he could be a consideration. But I'm not sure—age is against him."

Rockefeller appointed Lare to the new No. 2 spot the same day he appointed Wyman.

At the time he said, "Today's announcements assure continuity of leadership during a period of transition."

Transcript Issue Approved

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — While you no longer must ask your assemblyman's permission to find out what he said in session, you will have to ask him what he didn't say.

A resolution was approved Monday requiring that a transcript of an assemblyman's remarks during session be furnished on request.

The house balked at a proposal that would have permitted legislators to enter material into the daily record without having said it during the session.

Both proposals were offered by Majority Leader John E. Kingston, R-Westbury, along with a unanimously approved requirement that standing committees file annual reports on their proceedings.

votes by Republicans against a variety of Democratic sponsored attempts to reform proceedings of the house.

Most of the Democratic proposals called for reform in the functions and structures of committees. They also advocated that the joint legislative committees of assemblymen and senators be abolished. This would have left the assembly standing committees.

Although Democrats argued against the transcript proposal during debate the measure passed with Democratic approval.

Those wanting transcripts of a legislator's remarks previously had to ask his permission. Under the new practice the transcript will be available on request and without cost. Democrats argued that a full daily transcript of proceedings should be filed in the legislative library.

Republicans also forced defeat of a resolution to require a member to be in the chamber in order for his vote to be counted. Democratic Assemblyman Stephen Solarz of the Bronx sponsored the measure.

Republican Assemblyman J. Edward Meyer of Chappaqua bucked a party-vote against the resolution, telling newsmen: "It may seem incredible but votes on bills are being recorded every day for members who are actually in a local restaurant, their legislative office or even at home."

Another defeated resolution called for equal allotment of staff, stationery, postage and newsletters. Democratic Assemblyman Stephen S. Gottlieb of Manhattan said allocation of the materials was often political, adding, "this is one of the ways of disciplining the membership."

Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea, R-Montauk, announced the Republican-sponsored reform resolutions in the morning prior to the session.

Imagine, if you will, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm, Sen. James Buckley and Assemblywoman Mary Ann Krupsak, all under hair dryers, exchanging pleasantries and political chit-chat at the beauty salon.

Far-fetched as it may seem, this prophecy may come true if the state's barbering and cosmetology laws are revised.

New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo has scheduled a public hearing in New York City Feb. 1 on amending the state law to permit so-called "unisex" salons where men and women could go to be tonsured together.

Under current state laws, hairdressers are allowed to cut only the hair of the fairer sex. Barbers may cut the hair of any human being (this includes men), but they cannot set, color, or otherwise treat women's hair. To enforce these statutes, different licenses are required for hairdressers and barbers as well as for barbershops and beauty salons.

A sampling of people involved in the barbering and hairdressing field found there was little support for the revision, unless restricted to a sort of "separate but equal" status that would provide one salon area for men and another for women.

Marguerite Buck, the editor of the American Hairdresser Magazine, took the "separate, but equal" position. "Women," she said, "will object to being seen in an unromantic position." That position, she explained, is usually prone, with the face in various stages of delamination and the hair bedecked with curlers.

Mrs. Buck said "Unisex salons are for the future. The clientele is still largely the standbys, the older women, and they just aren't ready for it."

L. A. Freiburg, executive secretary of the New York State Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association said, "Women would be uncomfortable with men in a salon. The salon is a psychological lift for them. They don't have to be formal. And men would never go for it. Salons make them very nervous, most are afraid to walk through one."

One Albany barber had this cryptic comment, "I defy anyone to tell me the difference between a male and a female hair."

One lady cosmetologist speculated that the new law would be perfect for mothers with long-haired sons. "They'll drag them into the salon, and say, 'do something with this kid's hair, at least make it look alive.'"

No one interviewed on the subject mentioned the plight of the hairdresser who will have to start reading the sports section, stock up on bawdy jokes, and tolerate the aroma of cigar smoke.

There is also some question as to whether the current laws conflict with recent legislation prohibiting discrimination based on sex in places of public accommodation. Lomenzo has said this would be one of the topics at the hearing.

One woman, when asked why she so vehemently objected to the prospect of men in the beauty salon, said, "They're all right. I have nothing against them. I just wouldn't want one sitting next to me in the beauty parlor."

Criminal Charges Are Filed Against Soviet Officers

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Criminal charges of violating U.S. fishing waters in the Bering Sea were filed in federal court late Monday against three Soviet fleet officers.

The Russian officials were flown 600 miles from Adak Island, where their vessels were impounded, to Anchorage, where they appeared in U.S. District Court.

Their arraignment was postponed until Friday by Judge James A. von der Heydt, who released the three on their own recognizance to the custody of Vice Consul Albert Andropsev of the Soviet Embassy.

U.S. Attorney G. Kent Edwards formally filed charges against the Russians and asked that the two Soviet ships be confiscated along with their gear and cargo.

Conviction of the criminal charges could result in a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a fine of $100,000 for each of the three Soviet commanders.

Five previous Soviet fishing violations off Alaska have occurred, resulting in a total of $135,000 in fines. However, the United States never has consigned a Soviet fishing ship nor imprisoned their commanders.

The Soviets were charged under federal Title 16 of the U.S. Code Sections 1081 and 1091 regarding unlawful activities in support of foreign fisheries fleets.

Charges stated the three officers did "unlawfully engage in activities in support of a foreign fisheries fleet within the contiguous United States—to wit, the transfer of fish from the Soviet stern trawler Kolyvan to the Soviet factory ship Lamut."

The ships were seized by the Coast Guard icebreaker Storrs 9.4 miles off Cape Upright on St. Matthews Island Jan. 17.

The United States claims exclusive fishing rights to 12 miles offshore.

Edwards filed the charges after studying a detailed report submitted by William Allen, commander of the Storrs.

The Russians, Vladimir Artemov, commander of the Bering Sea fleet; Igor Bortun, and Nikolai Pazluk appeared in the federal courtroom in uniform, accompanied by a translator and their attorney, Andropsev Wanamaker.

Affidavit Filed in Hughes Book Case

NEW YORK (UPI)—An affidavit reportedly signed by Howard R. Hughes says the billionaire-recluse never authorized the publishers or authors of two controversial "autobiographical" books "to publish anything by or about me."

The affidavit was filed in New York Supreme Court on Monday in support of Rosemont Enterprises Inc., a Nevada-based company which seeks to halt publication and distribution of the books. Rosemont, the affidavit said, has "the sole exclusive rights to publish my biography, autobiography, life story, memoirs and accounts of incidents or events in my life."

Gerald P. Culkin said he would rule soon on Rosemont's request for an injunction.

Meanwhile in Zurich, Switzerland, banking authorities acknowledged an international search was underway for a petite, middle-aged woman calling herself Helga R. Hughes, who deposited into a numbered account three checks totaling $650,000. She later withdrew the money. McGraw-Hill Book Co. had written the checks to someone it thought was Hughes.

in return for his purported collaboration in an autobiography the company planned to publish in March.

A spokesman for the Swiss Credit Bank said, "It involves a case of clever fraud—so clever that our officials were unable to see through it."

Author Clifford Irving, who has said he interviewed Hughes 100 times over a period of nine months in preparing the book, handled all the financial transactions with "Hughes," the company has said.

Time-Life had planned to serialize the book next month. However, McGraw-Hill and Life magazine have announced they are holding up publication.

Another book called "My Life and Opinions," published by Best Books Press and edited by Robert P. Eaton, has appeared on the market. Eaton has said the book is based on memoirs Hughes gave him.

The affidavit states, "I never authorized Eaton, Ladies Home Journal (which has published an excerpt of Eaton's book), Best Books Press, McGraw-Hill, Time Inc. or Clifford Irving to publish anything by or about me. I never signed any agreements or had any communication with Clifford Irving, McGraw-Hill, or Robert P. Eaton and have never given any of them any instructions of any kind relating to the publication of anything about me. I do not personally know either Robert P. Eaton or Clifford Irving."

Howard Samuels' Son Enters Innocent Plea

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 19-year-old son of off-track-betting chief Howard J. Samuels, who was arrested last October on narcotics charges, pleaded innocent Monday to two counts of criminal possession of dangerous drugs.

Howard C. Samuels, the son, was arraigned before State Supreme Court Justice Moses Weinstein, who adjourned the case until Feb. 2 at which time it will be heard in the new Queens Narcotics Court.

Young Samuels was arrested Oct. 30 at Kennedy Airport by a sky marshal as the youth prepared to board a flight to Colorado. He allegedly had in his possession more than an ounce of cocaine and 10 bags of heroin.

Samuels, who was indicted last week, was examined after his arrest by a doctor at a Brooklyn rehabilitation center and declared an addict, according to papers presented in court.

The youth, who is free on $150 bail, faces a possible maximum sentence of seven years in prison, if found guilty.

safety and your GAS & ELECTRIC service

Gas and Electricity are as safe as any tools in man's service.

But like any tools, Gas and Electricity must be used correctly and safely. Here are a few suggestions.

Natural Gas is odorized so that you'll be able to detect even the smallest leak.

If you smell "gas" call Central Hudson immediately. We'll rush a crew to your home any time of night or day. Natural Gas isn't poisonous, but a leak can be hazardous and our Servicemen will do whatever is necessary to ensure your safety.

FUSES A fuse is a safety valve. If a fuse burns out in your fuse box it's a signal that you have too many appliances (too much electrical load on the circuit), or that an appliance or wire is defective. Remove some of the electrical load or the defective appliance from this circuit. If the fuse still blows, consult your electrician. Never put a larger fuse or metal object in the fuse receptacle.

The procedure for circuit breakers is the same as for fuses. If the breaker still trips after removal of load, consult your electrician.

EXTENSION CORDS Don't put four or five cords on the same outlet, don't run them under rugs and never use one that's cracked or worn. Also, remember that an extension cord that's adequate for a lamp won't have sufficient capacity for an iron or a toaster.

Water and electricity make a bad combination. Keep appliances and switches away from the bathtub or shower. Don't stand on a wet surface when using appliances. Electric tools should have 3-wire cords to minimize the danger of short-circuits.

T.V. ANTENNAS Be sure your antenna isn't located where it can fall on electric wires. If you're a do-it-yourself man, and put up your own antenna, be sure you don't get it or yourself near any wires.

FALLEN WIRES If you see electric wires hanging down or on the ground — do not go near them! Even if they don't appear to be energized they may be dangerous. Notify us immediately, and if possible have someone stay at the scene to warn others away until our crew arrives.

Irritants Increase

So many irritants to Soviet-American relations have been occurring, that the question has been raised: Are they deliberate tests of President Nixon's determination to visit both Peking and Moscow this spring or can they be coincidences with no political purpose or effect? Knowing Soviet ways, most believe there is some relationship between the incidents and the President's planned visit.

For instance, Moscow trumpeted the new agreement it signed with Hanoi early in the month to "strengthen the defense potential" of North Vietnam with sophisticated weapons against U.S. planes. A nation seeking closer American relations would not publicly pledge to supply such weapons without a purpose of its own. Does Moscow hope that additional military aid to Hanoi will aggravate the fighting to a point that it will compromise Mr. Nixon's trip to Peking? If so, it missed fire, as the preparations for the trip next month continue.

More recently, there was the expulsion of a United States congressman, Representative James H. Scheuer, New York Democrat, for visiting Russian Jews while on an official visit. Accused of sabotage, Scheuer was first held in a police station, then ordered to leave 24 hours before his visit was to end. The only explanation was a sheet of paper held up for the American embassy to see, but too far to read, presumably to imply that Scheuer had distributed anti-Soviet propaganda.

Finally, there was the intrusion in Alaskan water of two Soviet fishing vessels. Captured by the U.S. Coast Guard within the 12-mile limit, one broke away with the American boarding party aboard. Permission to fire warning shots was obtained, but it was not necessary as an American ice breaker blocked the path and halted the fleeing Soviet ship. The White House was informed but did not countermand the order to fire. Apparently, Mr. Nixon was not letting anything upset his trip, neither was he interfering with the normal performance of duty.

Army Tightens Up

After experimenting with liberalization, the Army has returned to tough basic training to transform the soft, sloppy civilian recruits into hardened, disciplined soldiers. The decision is that the relatively Spartan environment makes the best warriors.

The Army would not like the comparison, perhaps, but it is following the lead of the Marines. When the Army was giving up the regimes that millions of Americans remember from their days in the wars of the century, the Marines stuck to their ways as the best to prepare their tough contingent. The Army has come to a similar conclusion.

There are some exceptions. There are no plans to reinstitute the reveille formation for recruits. They need to arise only in time to show up for their first class or work detail. Weekend passes will be issued if men do their drilling satisfactorily during the week. With an added three days to the eight-week training period, new courses will be added in weaponry, communications, escape and evasion and character guidance.

The "new Army" will be new in accomplishment, not in ease and softness. Beer is out, jogging in.

OUTRAGEOUS "SETTLEMENTS"

Nothing makes a home buyer so angry and heartsick as the big costs tacked on that little ceremony called a "closing" when seller and buyer sign and exchange papers, attended by various lawyers and officials who each get their "take." The purchaser pays for an expensive "search" and survey to establish a title, researched and surveyed perhaps only the month before by another buyer. This process is a big gyp and should be eliminated by HUD.

RADICAL PROF OUT—The faculty senate advisory board of Stanford University definitely recommended that radical professor H. Bruce Franklin be dismissed. President Richard W. Lyman accepted the recommendation. If the Board of Trustees concurs, this will mark a new direction for universities, in recognizing that freedom to teach is not freedom to teach violence and coercion; or, in some cases, revolution.

WASHINGTON — Secret surveys show that American troops have thoroughly alienated the people they were sent to Vietnam to save. After a cost of 55,000 American lives and $120 billion (b) out of American pockets, the withdrawing U.S. forces will leave behind a populace seething with anti-American resentment, suspicion and loathing. The surveys were taken last year at all levels of Vietnamese society. They tell an ugly story of Vietnamese bitterness against Americans for killing innocent civilians, defoliating crops, forcing girls into prostitution, stimulating dope smuggling and reckless driving. The dismaying results, of course, were quickly classified so the American people wouldn't find out what their sacrifices have produced. But we have seen several of the suppressed surveys. Here are a few highlights:

Reckless Killings
"Ninety per cent of the interviews," said one survey, "focused only on the bad aspects of U.S. soldiers

(who) recklessly shoot their weapons from inside their compound because they suspect the VC (Viet Cong) are outside trying to fire rockets at them. Sometimes rounds hit the people's houses causing death."

"The people worry most," concluded another survey,

"about American influence on Vietnamese society, which has caused a change in ethics and a lowering of moral standards. Robbery, bribery, corruption and dealing in the black market and in opium became more numerous with the influx of the Americans."

The questioning of 75

Vietnamese near Long Binh drew these responses: "Forty-three per cent of the respondents reported that the presence of U.S. troops in the region had... fostered crime and corruption. Vietnamese officials, working at Long Binh base, with the help of U.S. soldiers secretly smuggled out goods worth billions of piasters. Smuggling white opium and marijuana has also become a big business."

"Seventy per cent of the interviewees said that the presence of U.S. troops has been the indirect cause of prostitution, 'cowboys' and thieves," declared another survey. "In Bien Hoa city alone, there are 200 prostitutes who cater to the Americans. As long as the prostitution remains, corruption including gambling, robbery and swindling will continue."

Girls Seduced

Still another survey found: "Fifty-five per cent... suggested that the wealth of U.S. soldiers has created many corrupt practices in Vietnamese society. Where there are U.S. soldiers, there are bar girls who are scantily dressed, act impolitely and openly display their sexual appeal."

From a hamlet near a U.S. base: "The interviewees said... sometime U.S. soldiers have undressed in front of a crowd, teased girls and used their money to seduce women. Many people do not want to associate with Americans."

There are two things, at least, that the Vietnamese like about Americans. The U.S. bases provided (1) jobs and (2) security from the Viet Cong. A suggested solution came from a survey of 62 U.S.-employed laborers, cooks and office workers.

"Most respondents recommend that unpopular activities be strictly prohibited," said the survey. "U.S. soldiers (should be) restricted and PX goods and careless spending of U.S. soldier (should) be controlled."

Footnote: We will publish more survey results in a future column.

Under the Dome

Representative Tom Steed, D-Okla., who handles appropriations for the White House, Treasury and Post Office, has developed an effective incentive system. "Bring in a surplus next year," he tells the bureaucrats, "and I'll be more receptive to what you ask for in your new budget."

... Senator George Aiken, R-Vt., a rock of integrity in the Senate for over 30 years, is now 79. Yet he still maintains a vigorous workday routine, thinks nothing of doing stoop labor in his garden at Putney, Vt.

Those House gadflies, H. D. Gross, R-Iowa, and Durward "Doc" Hall, R-Mo., love to carp so much that they happily accept gripes from less flamboyant House colleagues. Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., whose subcommittee has life-or-death power over surface transportation, has named two transportation bigwigs to help run his presidential campaign.

Hartke's campaign manager is Charles Roche, a lobbyist for Freight Forwarders, and the finance chairman is Eugene Garfield, president of Auto Train. This has led Senate insiders to quip: "There are two Senators from Indiana. One is Bayh and the other is 'Bought.'"

Senator Hubert Humphrey, who is coming up fast in the Democratic presidential sweepstakes, has dashed off a quick note to ex-Nixon aide Pat Monahan. "Don't get to rested in Academia," wrote HHH. "I am going to bring you back to Washington next January." Irreverent Congressmen have a new definition for a Senator: "Inflated balloon without the skin." ... Pampered Senators occupy multi-room suites and relax in taxpayer-subsidized steam baths. But the 24 hard-working capital guides are cramped into a single pantry-sized room beneath the great dome.

Bureaucratic Tactics

President Nixon, privately eyeing the Washington scene, finds himself tangled like Laocoon and his sons.

He sees scant humor in President Truman's famous remark about incoming President Eisenhower: "Poor Eisenhower, he'll push a button here, push another button there — and nothing will happen."

A veteran of 25 years on the Washington scene, Mr. Nixon knows as well as any living man the bureaucratic principles: When outranked there are many ways to differ with your boss — all of them dangerous. When in charge, come straight out with double meanings. When in trouble, delegate. When in doubt, mumble. Then refer the whole hot ball of wax to a coordinating committee for review.

Put all the principles together and they spell a coverup slightly smaller in size than Texas.

It's also a personal insurance policy. Make everybody responsible and nobody is responsible. As one example, President Nixon sees this as a basic problem in the State Department.

Despite Secretary William P. Rogers' antibureaucratic reforms, there are still many committees and people putting off decisions that this too often leaves only a choice of bad decisions — with nobody to blame.

The President knows that in government (or any enterprise) savings have a domino effect. You save here, because you saved there, because you have saved somewhere else. The bureaucratic defeat of that domino effect reverses it: you waste here, because you have wasted there, because you have wasted somewhere else. And Mr. Nixon confesses that this is what has happened. The Federal bureaucracy has increased 500 per cent during a period in which the population gain has been 63 per cent. For whose good?

There are more than 3.1 million civilians on the Washington payroll. It is any wonder that there is an astonishing amount of bureaucratic make-work?

Counting Federal, state and local governments, about 13 million people are on bureaucratic payrolls — more than 16 per cent of the country's total working force. And more than one-third of all professional and scientific workers are on public payrolls.

Washington bureaus alone are installing data processing computers at the astonishing rate of about 500 a year. More than 2,600 are now working. These have a full-time potential of supplying a stack of records 2,000 miles high every year.

Eliza Doolittle was impatient with the "words, words, words" of Henry Higgins. Well, government employees are thunderbolting us and each other with a billion letters annually. This averages 2,740,000 a day. The General Accounting Office estimates to me that each costs us taxpaying peasants about $2. That's nearly $5.5 million a day, to say nothing of the government forms and questionnaires. There are about 360,000 of these and most are as out of date as the Queen of Sheba's camel.

It costs us at least $8 billion a year for the Federal bureaucrats to push themselves through the paper-work jungle and another estimated $20 billion for us to reply. That's $28 billion a year out of our pockets, both ways! And as one result, about 250,000 — yes, 250,000 — Federal payrollers are chiefly involved with filing papers into cabinets. The executive branch alone has two million filing cabinets at the moment. All this brings President Nixon to an additional contrived piracy, which should be punctured.

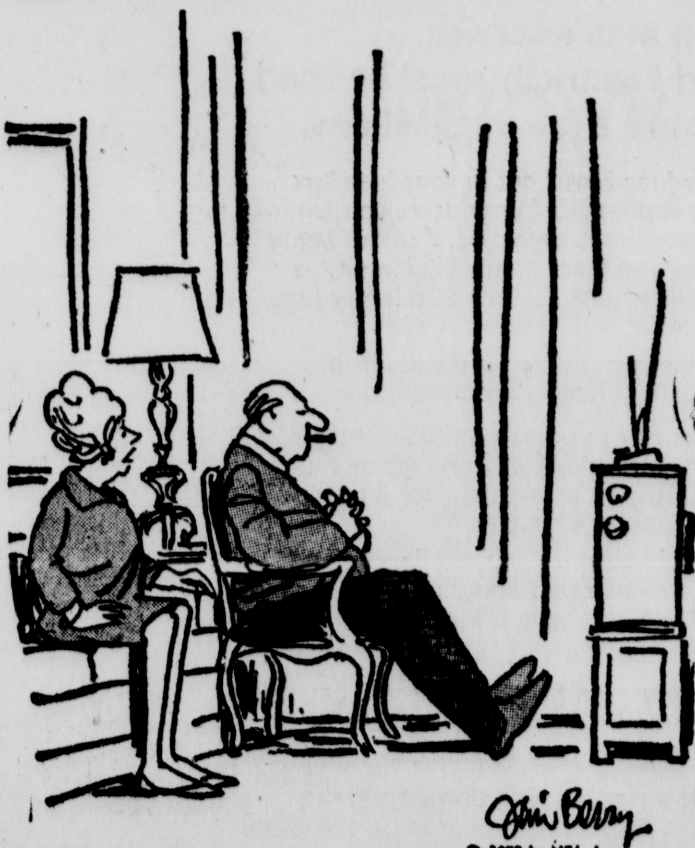

As this column revealed, he quietly issued last August an internal economy directive. It concerned itself with the fact that bureaucratic wages are established by job classification. This is subject to flagrant abuse. The abuse is achieved by salary increases through title only: promotions to a higher bureaucratic classification while doing the same job. It's foolproof as well, because Washington bureaucrats know that any President largely loses control in policing this.

This is the biggest steal since Manhattan Island. The Presidential directive notwithstanding, this upreep alone will increase the Washington payroll $1.2 billion in the current 1971-72 fiscal year.

The piracy could not be effectively stopped in the August 15 wages freeze, because the freeze could not effectively cover higher pay after promotion and it cannot be handled for the same reason in Phase II.

The beneficiaries are, as the British say, "Home and dry." And what can President Nixon do about this steal? The answer is nothing — and he knows it.

Ray Cromley Says

Congress Increases Critical Role

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The challenge to President Nixon's leadership in foreign affairs will grow.

In fact, congressional challenge to the president's leadership will become more critical in years ahead, no matter who is president or chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Thus intensified Senate versus the President struggle is strongly predicted by new academic studies on the changing political relationships in this country, including work by political scientist, Dr. David N. Farnsworth of Wichita State University.

These studies predict the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will be rougher on treaties. Instead of accepting them as written, as has been the custom, it may possibly want to write major provisions of important pacts rather than leaving this task up to the President and his negotiators. The committee, in fact, is likely to become more and more skeptical of executive requests generally.

Nominations for ambassador and for high posts in the State Department may get more of the hard scrutiny now being given to Supreme Court associate justices.

The Senate, and particularly the Foreign Relations Committee, is likely to develop a stronger, independent means of information gathering on foreign problems. More pressure may be put on the White House to open its own files.

The President may be forced into greater caution in making international agreements. He will want to explore whether a particular arrangement or commitment will give rise to strong challenges in Congress which could hurt him politically. Before making nominations, the President will give more thought to how nominees will be received by the Senate.

Farnsworth seems to believe the President will repeatedly ask himself: "Will Congress challenge this commitment as an overextension of U.S. policy?" in much the same way that presidents once asked themselves: "Will Congress and the public accuse the administration of being soft on communism if a commitment is not made or intervention is not carried out?"

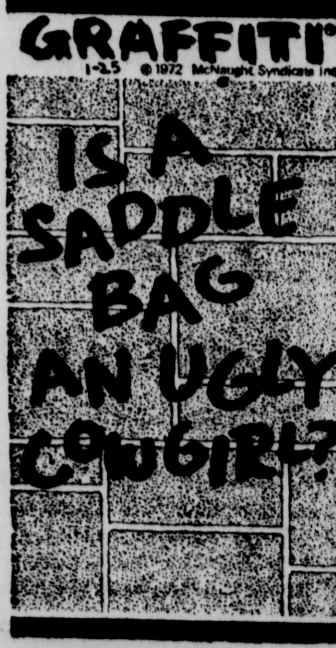

The growing tendency of Congress to criticize will possibly cause the President to depend more on executive agreements with foreign countries and less on treaties which must be reviewed by the Senate though it is not clear how this would stifle congressional debate.

Congressional skepticism of the Pentagon's role in policymaking, it would also seem, may revive the importance of the State Department in the development of foreign policy and downgrade the influence of the Secretary of Defense.

The increasingly critical role of Congress in foreign affairs, if it pans out as predicted in this research, will be good if it leads to more open debate, exposing pitfalls overlooked by the administration, and provides the public with a clean view of the issues. It might, for one, keep this country from slipping into situations so tangled we could extricate ourselves only with the greatest difficulty once we found they served no worth-while purpose.

But if the new relationships should end up in excessive congressional carping on the one hand and endless presidential maneuvering on the other, U.S. foreign policy could end up a shambles.

Mayor Makes Appointments

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig announced the appointment of Mrs. Florence S. Ludlow for a three-year term. Koenig cited Flowers for his service to the city.

Finch was the chairman of the fire board in 1971 and is beginning his second three-year term. Under the system of rotating chairmen, Donald Mathews will chair the fire board this year. Finch is the father of John E. Finch, the Fifth Ward representative to the Common Council.

Mrs. Ludlow was the first woman ever elected to the Common Council, winning office in 1967, from the old First Ward. She was reelected in 1968 and in 1969 but chose not to seek reelection in 1971.

The Common Council will be notified of the mayors' appointments at its Feb. 1 meeting.

WHITA Scores Budget Hearings

SAUGERTIES will be represented at both hearings and will request to be placed on the agenda for each session.

The Feb. 9 hearing will deal with "Aid to Schools" and the Feb. 25 hearing will concern "State Agency Operations and Construction."

Mrs. Alice Tapp, president of the We've Had It Taxpayer's Association of Ulster County, Inc., (WHITA) has criticized the scheduling of two public hearings on Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's 1972 budget.

The hearings will be held in Albany on Feb. 9 and 25 at 10 a.m. In expressing her opposition to the days (Wednesday and Friday) and time of the hearings, Mrs. Tapp said, "Is there any real desire to hear from the public at these hearings?" She added that she expected attendance at the Pine Funeral Home Inc., 124 Main Street, New Paltz, this evening 7 to 9. The Rosary will be recited at the Pine Funeral Home this evening at 8.

Mrs. Tapp added that WHITA

Town of Ulster Implements New Winter Parking

TOWN OF ULSTER

A stringent wintertime parking ordinance for the Town of Ulster has been implemented, after its recent passage as Local Law No. 2 by the Town Board.

The new law prohibits the parking of any vehicle on a town highway or other public property between midnight and 6 a.m. from Nov. 1 to March 15 of the succeeding year.

In addition, the law gives the Superintendent of Highways the authority to tow away any vehicle left unattended for more than 24 hours within the right of way of any town highway within the Town of Ulster. During periods declared a snow emergency, the Superintendent of Highways is empowered to remove any vehicle which obstructs or interferes with public travel on a highway, or which interferes with the operation of the Town of Ulster Highway Department during snow removal procedures.

Violators are subject to a fine not to exceed $50 or imprisonment not to exceed 15 days, or both. The violation shall be deemed an infraction under the Vehicle and Traffic Law. In addition, the owner of a vehicle that has been towed away shall be charged for removal, disposition and storage of the vehicle.

If the vehicle remains in the possession of the Town for more than 30 days, and is unclaimed, it may be sold at a public sale. Notice of the sale must be posted conspicuously in at least three public places in the town at least six days before the date of the sale.

According to definitions established by the Town Board, the law covers all vehicles, both licensed and unlicensed, excepting those moved by human power or used exclusively on stationary rails or tracks.

SBA Official Sets City Meet

KINGSTON

David Offenberger, loan officer of the Small Business Administration, will again be in Kingston. Len Cane, Chamber of Commerce executive vice-president, reported that Feb. 1 has been set aside as the day for Offenberger's visit with county businessmen.

Cane said that, for the present, it is definite that the SBA would visit Kingston on the first Tuesday of each month. The first visit, in December, was a test to gauge the interest. The second visit Jan. 4 confirmed this interest. On both occasions Offenberger filled each quarter-hour time period with an interview.

As always, appointments must be scheduled through the County Chamber office. Appointments may be made by calling the Chamber at 338-5100.

This service to the area was brought to Kingston through the combined efforts of the Ulster County Chamber and Congressman Hamilton Fish's office.

Bid Openings On Route 213 Work Scheduled

ALBANY

Bids will be opened Feb. 17 by the State Department of Transportation for safety improvements on a short section of Route 213 near Rifton in the Town of Esopus.

The project, to be carried out just east of the Governor Thomas E. Dewey Thruway, is being advanced, the department said, in the interest of driving safety. The Route 213 section closely adjacent to the Wallkill River has shown signs of settlement.

The roadside slope opposite the riverbank will be cut back and about 900 feet of the highway will be widened and resurfaced with asphalt on an improved alignment, easing a curve and at the same time shifting the roadbed about 10 feet away from the river. The road shoulders will be strengthened, new guide railings installed and drainage improvements made.

All bids will be opened publicly at 10:30 a.m. in the hearing room at the DOT Administration and Engineering Building at the State Office Campus, Albany.

United Way Donations Up in Paltz

NEW PALTZ

Businessmen, residents, employees, and professional people in the New Paltz area nearly doubled last year's contributions to the United Way of Ulster County, contributing more than $7,000 against last year's $4,000 Rotary President Kurt J. Matzdorf announced this week.

Contributions from the college totaled another $7,000 bringing the New Paltz area donations to over $14,000. New Paltz donations were the highest for any of the local drives outside of Kingston.

The Highland-New Paltz Rotary Club took on the annual campaign when United Way attempts to find an individual chairman had proved fruitless when the campaign was scheduled to begin.

Rotarian Roy Hassel coordinated the campaign for his club, and numerous business and professional men in the club accepted responsibility for various interest groups within the community.

Retail and professional divisions more than tripled their 1970 contributions. The retail group, under the chairmanship of Robert Reid, increased its giving from under $400 last year to $1,300 in 1971, and professional donors increased from $335 to $1,068. Special and individual gifts went from $2,350 to $3,685. New Paltz college met its quota of $7,000, and New Paltz schools passed $800.

Last year's drive in New Paltz netted $12,300 of which $8,400 was raised at the college.

Senior Citizens Meet in Kingston

KINGSTON

Buses, discounts and more activities were discussed at a special Senior Citizen seminar held recently.

The session, sponsored by the senior citizens committee of Kingston Rotary Club was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel with participants as guests at the service club luncheon meeting. Representatives of all Kingston Senior Citizens Clubs attended as well as advisors from New York State Employment, Social Security office, Senior Citizens Advisory Council and the Salvation Army.

It was noted that the bus supplied by Rotary was wanted by people who do not have regular bus service to shop. The new bus schedule in the city was discussed and the Rotary committee talked about having bus schedule cards printed.

Additional businesses giving senior citizens discounts were desired in the areas of shoe stores, fabric stores, food markets, Cablevision and department stores.

An effort will be made to get more active senior citizens. Paul Schleede, chairman of the Rotary senior citizens committee noted that at the present time "we are far short of 25 per cent of the eligible senior citizens" who have identification cards. Churches will be contacted to get senior citizens active and interested. Efforts will be made also to set up a regular meeting of various clubs' officers for exchange of ideas and cooperative ventures.

Also under discussion at the meeting was the possibility of having a place for senior citizens to display handicrafts.

Dog Trainers Set Session

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Dog Training Club Inc. will hold graduation exercises at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium tonight 7:30 p.m.

The public may attend at no admission charge. Refreshments will be served. There will be an opportunity to see obedience training for all breeds of dogs.

Prices Are Still Climbing

No relief in sight as meat prices continue to climb for the third week in a row. Lack of available supply appears to be the main factor in this price rise trend; according to the New York State Market and Consumer Information Service. Demand continues good for beef and pork even with the higher prices. However, some consumer resistance is being noted for the higher priced cuts.

Each store will have a very limited number of sale items, but some where in each area most of the cuts will be featured. Beef specials will be mostly for quarter cuts such as chuck steaks from 69 cents—79 cents. Arm cut chuck roast 89 cents, boneless rolled Boston roast $1.09 and rib steaks 1.19 to 1.39. A few stores will feature sirloin steaks from 1.09 to 1.29. Porterhouse 1.39 to 1.49 and sirloin tip steaks around 1.39 also boneless rump roasts 1.29, rib roasts 1.09, short ribs 59 cents and ground chuck at 69 cents per pound.

There will be a variety of pork cuts features if you look for them. Fresh hams will be a sale for 59 cents to 69 cents. Whole or either half. Smoked hams shank half 59 cents butt half 65 cents to 69 cents, center cut slices will be on sale around 99 cents. A few stores will feature quarter cut pork loin roasts around 79 cents, center cut roasts and chops 88 cents to 98 cents, boneless smoked pork shoulders around 99 cents, bacon in the 59 to 79 cents range and smoked pork loin roasts around 99 cents.

A few stores will feature frozen inspected leg of lamb roasts whole or half at 69 cents, shoulder chops 59 cents, round bone shoulder chops 79 cents, also shoulder roast at 49 cents and combination chop and stew packages at 39 cents.

Poultry will be the best buy with turkeys featured in all areas in a wide range from 33 cents to 49 cents. Turkey drum sticks will top the economy list at 19 cents to 29 cents per lb. Roasting chickens will be on sale for 49 cents. Fryers quartered will range from 35 cents to 39 cents and legs or breasts will feature from 39 cents to 59 cents.

Victory Dinner Slated Here

Kingston City Democratic Committee will hold a Victory Dinner Saturday, Feb. 5 at Walnut Grove, Field Court, Kingston. There will be a cocktail hour from 6 to 7 p.m. A prime ribs of beef dinner will be served at 7 o'clock and dancing will be from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Tickets are available by contacting Mrs. Agnes Loughran and Mrs. Florence Crosby, both of Kingston, or from any of the Democratic committeemen. Reservation deadline is Saturday, Jan. 29.

Brother Officiates at Sister's Marriage

Miss Orlinda Estella Reid, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Filson Reid, Ashokan Parsonage, Shokan, became the bride of Jerry Eugene Carafello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carafello, 125 Longview Drive, Waldwick, N. J., on Saturday, Jan. 8 at 5 p.m. in Ashokan United Methodist Church.

Rev. Ian Oakley Reid, brother of the bride, Boston, Mass., officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Sickler, organist provided traditional wedding selections. Marlene Knight accompanied Mrs. Walter Smith who sang "Wedding Song," by Paul Stookey.

White, pink and American Beauty roses, gladioli, pompons, carnations and chrysanthemums decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin Victorian gown under a French Alencon lace and rayon organza coat. Her long veil was attached to a headpiece of Alencon lace with pearl cluster trim and crystal drops. The bride carried a bouquet of pink and American Beauty roses and lily of the valley.

Linda Toomey, Moonachie, N. J., served as honor attendant. Other attendants were Diane Carafello, Waldwick, N. J.; Kahnade Janke, Paterson, N. J., and Susan Reynolds, Moonachie, N. J. All wore ruby velvet Victorian gowns and carried white muffs, accented with American Beauty roses. The honor attendant wore a crown headpiece of roses and the bridesmaids wore ruby bows in their hair.

Miss Susan Reid, niece of the bride, was flower girl in a ruby velvet Victorian gown. She carried a basket of red sweetheart roses.

Best man was Bruce Janke of Paterson, N. J. Ray Pajari, Waldwick, N. J.; Frank Toomey and James Reynolds, both of Moonachie, N. J., served as ushers. Stephen Reid nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

A reception for 120 guests was held at Capri 400, Port Ewen.

For her traveling ensemble to Rome, Italy, the bride selected a pale blue crepe dress and a fur coat.

Mrs. Carafello was graduated from Hunter-Tannersville High School and received her BS degree from Union College, Barbourville, Ky. The bride is a member of Girls Service Sorority and was queen of Phi Mu Alpha fraternity and of Stevenson Hall fraternity. She is employed as a second grade necticut State College, New Britain, Conn., where he is majoring in Pediatrics. The couple will reside at Winsted, Conn.

'Changes' Could Cause Fiance Friction

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion on a statement my boyfriend has made to me. Let me preface by saying that our relationship is very serious, and we are considering marriage.

We were discussing marriage and children, and I asked him if he would ever change a baby's diaper. He replied, "Absolutely not. Just the thought of it is revolting!" Abby, I am not saying that this particular task would be shared equally between us, but I would like to think that if I were not feeling well, or happened to be away for a few hours, my husband would assume the job if necessary.

How do you feel about this? NAMELESS, PLEASE

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR NAMELESS: I think there should be some "changes" made before you have children. And for openers, one should be your fiance's attitude.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 33 years. My husband is 62 and I am 58. Recently my husband lost his job because he had an affair with a young married woman who worked where he worked.

My question: Should I write and tell our son the truth about his father? Our son lives in another state but will be coming home soon, and I'm afraid somebody might tell him. This is a small town and you know how people talk, and I'd rather have him hear it from me than from a stranger.

Also, the young woman my husband had the affair with is still working there. Her husband is employed and I am not and I am too old to start looking for a job. Do you think that's fair?

UNHAPPY AT 58
DEAR UNHAPPY: No. If your husband was fired because of the affair, the woman should have been fired also. Don't tell your son the reason for his father's dismissal. He may not hear about it. But if he does, tell him the truth.

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point: I've been a saleslady in the same store for 36 years, so you know I'm no kid. I've sold neckwear, blouses, costume jewelry and purses over the years.

My pet peeve is the "looker." When I notice a customer is interested in something, I approach her with a smile and in a pleasant tone of voice, I say, "May I help you, Madame?"

Nine times out of ten, she will drop whatever she was looking at and say, "No thanks, I was just looking."

Then she walks away. I suppose I should be used to it by now, but it still burns me up.

Why do women do this? "MISS B"

DEAR MISS B: Because while "Madame" is trying to make up her mind, the salesperson interrupts her silent "should-I-or-shouldn't-I" debate, and Madame becomes defensive. She's afraid she'll be talked into a sale she may later regret. A better approach would be, "If you find something you like, I'll be glad to help you."

Remember, all buyers were "lookers" first.

Wedding Announced

Announcement was made today of the wedding of Miss Patricia Louise Schmerschneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schmerschneider of Northbrook, Ill., and ETN3 Robert S. Lukaszewski, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lukaszewski, 170 Clifton Avenue.

The ceremony took place in St. Norbert's Church, Northbrook, where the Rev. Robert Herne officiated at the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial Mass. Traditional and modern organ selections were provided. White carnations, chrysanthemums, and gladioli trimmed with green moss decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white, styled with an empire bodice and wedding ring neckline. Floral designed lace accented the waist, neck, cuffs, front panel and detachable train. Her shoulder length illusion veil was attached to a bow style headpiece and she carried a bouquet of jumbo white carnations, and holly leaves trimmed with green baby's breath.

Miss Linda Roesel, New Lenox, Ill., was maid of honor, and Miss Joan Schmerschneider, sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid. They were attired in moss green velvet gowns.

Robert Schwenk of Kingston served as best man. Ushers were John Lukaszewski, brother of the bridegroom and James Schmerschneider, brother of the bride.

The cruets and Chalice for Mass were carried to the altar by the fathers of the bride and bridegroom and the bride placed a special floral piece at the Blessed Mother's altar.

A reception for about 80 guests was held at the Clayton House, Wheeling, Ill.

The couple will reside in Sidi Yahia, Morocco, where Mr. Lukaszewski is serving with the U.S. Navy.

Lecture-Demonstration on Yoga Wednesday

RAHILA DEVI MCKEE

Rahila Devi McKee, who has taught the principles of Yoga to many groups in Ulster County, will give a lecture-demonstration sponsored by the Ulster Academy Parents Association on Wednesday evening, Jan. 26, at 8 o'clock. All members of the public are invited to attend the program, which will be held at Temple Emmanuel on Albany Avenue in Kingston.

Mrs. McKee currently teaches Yoga (exercises, meditation, and Indian philosophy) at SUNY, New Paltz, Department of Continuing Education, where students receive credits for her Hatha Yoga exercise courses. She holds classes, too, in her Kingston Studio on Fair Street where beginners course will get underway on February 10. Last semester Mrs. McKee taught at Ulster Academy.

In the lecture-demonstration on January 26th, Mrs. McKee will explain the meaning and purpose of Yoga and its practical application to our physical, mental and emotional lives. She will explain how the whole universe can be thought of as consciousness and energy manifested in vibration — a principle which modern science has begun to acknowledge. She will illustrate the power of sound vibration (known as Mantra Yoga) reflected in her body through movement and mime and will act out concepts suggested by the audience in order to enhance their spiritual understanding.

Those members of the audience who wish to join Mrs. McKee in meditation involving free-flow improvisation of chant and dance will be invited to participate.

Admission is open to the public and is free.

More Than $1 Million

Renaissance Gains Grant

NEW ROCHELLE
By WADE BURKHART

The Renaissance Project, a drug rehabilitation program based in New Rochelle but operating two facilities in Ulster County, has been notified that it has received a grant totaling over $1 million from the Federal government, according to Joseph Tortelli, its executive director.

Tortelli told The Freeman Monday that word had been received late Friday afternoon from the office of Congressman Ogden Reid (R-26th) that the grant had been approved by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The grant is spread over eight years. This year's grant is for $279,000. Tortelli said Renaissance will have to put up $60,000 plus to receive this year's installment. As the grant continues, Renaissance will have to put up a greater percentage each year, and by the eighth year will have to match 70 per cent of the grant.

Renaissance operates a drug rehabilitation residential center in Ellenville, and a store front-type operation in Kingston.

The store front-type operation is currently staffed by Renaissance personnel, but is operating out of Kingston Hospital. Tortelli said there were plans to move to a true store front in the near future, and the Federal grant would aid in the move.

The grant is coming through the National Institute of Mental Health, an arm of HEW.

Tortelli said the exact amounts of grant money which will be coming to Ulster County have not yet been determined, as Renaissance has not yet received a budget breakdown from HEW, but the grant will definitely have an effect on the Ulster County operations.

Besides contributing to the earlier opening of a Kingston store front, the grant will be used to augment Renaissance's professional staff, including a full-time psychiatrist, medical personnel, and vocational guidance specialists.

The project's original funding was through the State of New York, with Westchester County and localities in which Renaissance facilities were located, also contributing.

The Kingston store front will be financed, in part, by the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council.

Ulster County also contributes to the Renaissance operation. In November, the county appropriated $12,000 for a maximum of 20 residents in the Renaissance residential center in Ellenville.

Tortelli said the sum still had $9,000 left in it. The rate for residents in the center is $10 per day, and Tortelli said there were presently nine Ulster County residents housed in the Ellenville facility.

He said he hoped the county would appropriate more funds for the housing of county residents, as the present appropriation, at the current rate and given the number of Ulster County residents presently housed, will only last about four months. He was also hopeful the county would increase the number of spaces requested for Ulster County residents at the Ellenville facility.

Tortelli called the Federal Grant "a lifesaver." He said he had received no word as yet from the state, but considering the present tightened financial circumstances of the state, he expected the state grant to Renaissance to be decreased.

NURSES ARRIVE — Fourteen registered nurses from the Philippines arrived in Kingston Monday to join the staff of Benedictine Hospital. They were received in ceremonies at the hospital during the morning by representatives of city and county and national government as well as local businessmen and members of the hospital Board of Directors and Advisory Board. Clifford Henze (L) secretary of the Board of Directors, welcomes Rosalina Hulfalar and Loreta Saja, two of the nurses; as does Sister Mary Charles, administrator and Mayor Francis R. Koenig. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Two Firms Are Penalized by State

NEW PALTZ
Burnished Metals, of Ellenville, and Consolidated Edison have been assessed penalties by order of State Environmental Conservation Commissioner Henry L. Diamond, according to Warren H. McKeon, director of the Department of Environmental Conservation's Region 3. Burnished Metals was fined $500 for discharging zinc into the Ellenville sewer system, that zinc eventually finding its way into the Sandburg Creek, to DEC. The violation occurred June 11, 1971.

Burnished Metals was also directed to install facilities designed to prevent future discharges of zinc and other unacceptable industrial wastes into state waters and to sample its effluent and submit reports to DEC. Consolidated Edison was fined

$1,000 for oil spills at its Indian Point Plant No. 2 on March 6, May 19, and July 29, 1971.

Con Ed was also directed to post a $5,000 bond to insure compliance with other provisions of the Commissioner's Order. The other provisions include installation of temporary facilities designed to prevent future oil spills from entering the Hudson River, and within one year, installation of permanent facilities, including a revised interior plant drainage system and placement of an oil boom in the main discharge canal to facilitate the collection and removal of any oil wastes.

The Westchester County Health Department deserves special credit, according to Department of Environmental Conservation Sanitary Engineers, for its assistance in the investigations leading to the Con Ed settlement.

Favorable Report on Lindenwald

KINDERHOOK
Rep. Hamilton Fish, Jr. today announced a favorable report on acquisition of Lindenwald as a National Historic Site has been sent up from the Department of Interior to the Committee of Interior and Insular Affairs.

The action by the department of Interior follows favorable action earlier this month by the Office of Management and Budget on Congressman Fish's bill calling for acquisition of President Martin Van Buren's Kinderhook home by the federal government.

The Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, chaired by Wayne Aspinall, (D-Col) is the main portion of the Van Buren committee which will have to act on the Lindenwald acquisition bill. Congressman Fish has requested early committee hearings on his bill.

In the letter endorsing acquisition of Lindenwald, the report from the department of Interior points out that Lindenwald in Columbia County is the only remaining structure and property intimately associated with the former President of the United States.

"His famous visitors included Winfield Scott, Henry Clay, Sam Tilden, Frank Blair and Thomas Benton," the report states. The report points out that the mansion is a two and one-half story brick structure of the Federal type, built in 1797 with a total of 36 rooms and passageways.

"The interior of the mansion remains relatively unchanged since the historic period," the report states. "Most of the original hardware remains, including silverplated knobs and hardware on the first floor and the carpenter locks on the second floor."

It is estimated that the Lindenwald Historic Site will encompass approximately 42 acres, a portion of which is presently owned by the state and which will be donated. The remainder it is proposed, will be purchased.

The Department of Interior in its report to the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee recommends that the title of the Fish bill be changed from "Van Buren-Lindenwald Historic Site" to "Lindenwald National Historic Site."

Paltz AFS Chapter Seeking Student Home

NEW PALTZ
The New Paltz Chapter of the American Field Service is seeking potential homes for a high school student from abroad who will come to New Paltz in the Fall for the senior year under the AFS student exchange program. Chapter officials recently announced.

Families offering to host a student for a semester are asked to get in touch with Mrs. Helen Karsten, chapter president, 20 Harrington Street, New Paltz.

Under a recent change issued by the national AFS organization, exchange students will be guests in two homes during the year rather than in one home as formerly.

Although there is no reimbursement to the host family, an income tax deduction for a dependent is allowed by Internal Revenue Service.

The chapter must report the names of the host families to New York City headquarters by Feb. 15. A young man or woman will be chosen for the family based upon the homes selected. Miss Beatrice Lecoq, a high school exchange senior from France this year, will reside her second semester with the Jack Crawford family, 3 Oak-

Visual Group Sets Meeting

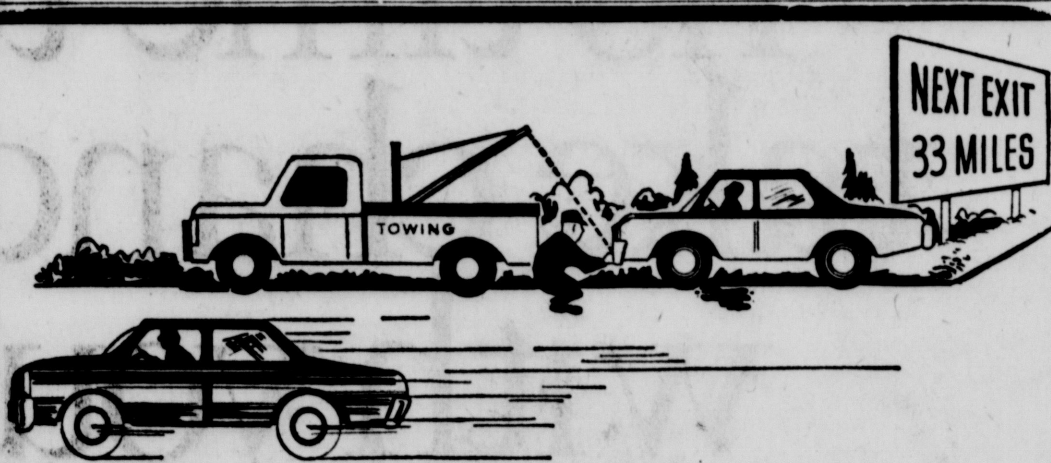

RHINEBECK
A meeting of the Rhinebeck Visual Environment Committee Jan. 27 will endeavor to find out what Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. can do to aid the appearance of the village.

According to Michael Fichera, president of the First National Bank of Rhinebeck, it is hoped that Elmer Cranz of Central Hudson can be present.

Members of the Visual Environment Committee, an ad hoc citizens group, have expressed hope in the past that electrical and telephone cable might be buried underneath the streets in the Village of Rhinebeck as part of an overall scheme to capitalize on the natural beauty of the village.

Fichera also noted that Attorney Thomas Frost may be able to report on incorporation proceedings for the Committee. It is felt that this will give the committee some clout and a sense of permanence in dealing with problems over the next few years.

Westchester Teenager Dies From Anesthesia Reaction

BEACON, N.Y. (AP)—A Westchester County teenager died from a freakish reaction to anesthesia in a local hospital after a fall.

The 17-year-old boy, identified as Eric J. Wink, died at the hospital's administrator confirmed today.

The boy was brought to the hospital after a fall at the ski slope. X-rays revealed a fracture and a medical team administered surgery. Wink said. The boy died after application of the unspecified anesthetic.

Wink called it "as rare as somebody dying from taking aspirin."

Bank of America Lowers Rates

NEW YORK (UPI)—The cost of borrowing money for consumers, businesses and banks in the prime rate—the interest in a bank charges its most creditworthy business borrowers—and in the mortgage rate made it necessary to reduce the rate paid to savers. On Feb. 1, the interest rate the Bank of America pays on regular savings goes down 1.2 point to 4 per cent.

The Bank of America's cut of the prime rate follows similar action in recent weeks by some New York and other banks.

Clausen said the interest paid by his bank on long term savings would remain the same.

Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago and Provident Bank of Chicago also cut their prime rates Monday. The Crocker National Bank of San Francisco cut its mortgage rate on Friday.

The Home has acknowledged the receipts of the following gifts, memorials and services during December.

Flowers contributed in memory of Mrs. Gertrude P. Gulnick, Mrs. Josephine Rua, William Whiston, Paul Hinkley, Beulah Staples, Linda Every and Earl Kilmer.

Sunday services conducted by Rev. Harold F. Schadewald, Rev. Harry D. Robinson, Rev. Richard Lake and The Salvation Army.

In addition, magazines were donated by Mrs. Robert J. Service; apples were donated by A. R. Mott, and Christmas carols were presented by several church groups.

Obey Poster Signs

Members of the Rondout Snowmobile Club urge snowmobilers to stay on the edges of fields and respect the wishes of landowners who give permission for use of their property. "If we don't follow rules and regulations we won't be allowed to ride anywhere else but in our own back yard," a club spokesman said. "So for your own sake and for your fellow snowmobilers, please obey our poster signs."

CREDIBILITY AT NEW YORK TELEPHONE?

The New York Telephone Company is a public utility.

As a public utility with a guaranteed profit and protection against competition it must assume its public trust and responsibility.

We insist that it has a responsibility to you, the consumer. We presume it has a responsibility to its stockholders. We genuinely hope that it has some responsibility to its employees. We insist that it has the responsibility for public trust and service.

At this point in time, in our view it has yet to display this trust and responsibility.

Item:

Early in January, Mr. William Ellinghaus, President of New York Telephone, sent a letter to all of his "fellow employees." In it he confessed there had been no progress toward settlement of the strike at New York Telephone but claimed the company was willing to bargain.

But within days the company notified the union that no further meetings were necessary and declared, in a press release, that "the company has no further proposals."

It just doesn't make sense for New York Telephone to say in one breath that it wants to reach a settlement and, in the next, declare an end to negotiations... for how can you negotiate if there are no further discussions.

That's credibility gap number one.

Item:

In a recent newspaper advertisement, New York Telephone claimed that "with the exception of installations, service in New York City was better than it has been in several years." It claimed that this was so in spite of the fact that 38,000 of its employees were off the job and on strike.

If the New York Telephone Company's contention is an honest and truthful one, then we must assume as a logical conclusion that it has no intention of returning the 38,000 employees now on strike back to work. We must conclude that the company does not need the services of these 38,000 employees and therefore should refund to you—the telephone consumer—the millions of dollars in wages saved during these last six months of strike when the telephone company has charged and collected from you.

As everyone knows, rates paid by New York Telephone subscribers are based on the company's costs. If the company has saved millions in wages during the period of the strike... and if the 38,000 people are not needed by New York Telephone... then New York Telephone should pay back to telephone subscribers these savings.

That's credibility gap number two.

Item:

In spite of the company's claim in its recent newspaper advertisement that telephone service is better than ever, New York Telephone this month wrangled a $351 million rate increase from the Public Service Commission. The company claimed it needed the additional millions to keep up its profit margin.

And this increase was coupled with an order to the company to rebate charges to customers with "chronic poor service."

The Commission added that the increase may price telephone service out of the reach of the less affluent.

Credibility gap number three, then, is how New York Telephone can claim service is better than ever while being ordered to pay its customers a rebate for chronic poor service today and ignoring the service demands of tomorrow.

The Communications Workers of America finds credibility at New York Telephone INCREDIBLE.

- We find it incredible that the New York Telephone Company, with a vital responsibility of serving the nation's great communications centers, can be so irresponsible in dealing with the truth of this dispute.

- We find it incredible that the New York Telephone Company possessed the gall to accept rate increases from the Public Service Commission when wage costs for strike than six months have not been paid to the 38,000 employees on strike.

- We find it incredible that it refuses to continue to bargain, when in fact, the majority of the issues in dispute would not affect the profits of the company or cost the consumer one single solitary cent.

- We find it incredible that the New York Telephone Company can continue to expect supervisory employees from other Bell System Companies throughout the nation to perform work normally performed by the New York employees out on strike. This just has to deny service to consumers in those areas robbed of supervisory personnel.

- We find it incredible that the New York Telephone Company can publicly—and sanctimoniously—claim in one breath that it does want to settle this dispute, and in the second breath state publicly that it "has no further proposals."

Can you believe the company wants to settle, when it notifies the union there can be no further meetings? How can you resolve a dispute without meetings of the parties involved?

We in the CWA believe that the people of New York are entitled to and deserve the truth regarding this dispute with New York Telephone.

We believe that the men and women of New York Telephone who are obligated to provide service to you are entitled to a full measure of human dignity as useful citizens performing this vital job.

We believe this dispute between CWA and New York Telephone, involving a number of issues the solution of which would not cost the company or the consumer a single cent, can be settled by bargaining in good faith.

We believe that any public utility such as New York Telephone which receives protection under law must render by virtue of the law, adequate service or rebate to the people of the State.

We believe that New York Telephone does not share these beliefs and we find this truly incredible.

Crum Makes Message Clear

By United Press International
While Marquette's Al McGuire still seems to have trouble communicating, Louisville's Denny Crum is making his message very clear.

McGuire, whose team is unbeaten this season, openly berated his players last week for what he called "a selfish attitude." McGuire said his players were not playing as a team and had lost "the family relationship," which had marked the club.

His words failed to shake the Warriors, who managed to stretch their unbeaten string to 15 games Monday night by beating Notre Dame 71-62 but who again failed to play cohesively.

Marquette trailed Notre Dame, in one of its worst seasons, by as many as nine points through most of the first half before rallying to take a 31-29 halftime lead. The Warriors, with 6-foot-11 Jim Chones leading the way, outscored the Fighting Irish 6-0 in the first minute and a half of the second half and then the teams played evenly the rest of the way.

Chones led the second-ranked Warriors with 24 points while Garry Novak had 25 to lead Notre Dame, now 3-9.

Crum, Louisville's bright young coach, has the Cardinals running like a smooth machine. Louisville, ranked fifth, posted its 13th victory in 14 starts as Ron Thomas scored 17 points and grabbed 22 rebounds in a 95-72 rout of North Texas State.

Crum, a former UCLA player and assistant to Bruins Coach John Wooden, is intent on building a challenger for national honors to his alma mater, which has won five consecutive NCAA titles.

No other ranked major colleges were in action Monday night but Eau Claire, the No. 1 ranked small college team, saw its unbeaten season ended by North Dakota. A pair of free throws by Craig Skerperud gave North Dakota a 73-70 victory and ended the Bluegolds' winning streak at 13 games.

Elsewhere, Ken Charles scored 20 points and Bart Woytowich added 19 as Fordham beat Army 81-71 and ended the Cadets' four-game winning streak and Rick Rawlings scored 23 points as Washington State beat Oregon 73-56. Steve Davidson's 21 points and 15 rebounds helped West Texas State rout Long Island University 84-69 and Eastern Kentucky, with Charlie Mitchell hitting 26 points, whipped Western Kentucky 96-78.

Bud Stallworth's 24 points led Kansas to a 74-71 victory over Iowa State and Arizona State, behind Paul Stovall's 25 points, trimmed Los Angeles State 96-89. Bill Newton hit 23 points as Louisiana State beat Florida 84-73 and Bill Duwe, with 25 points, helped California beat Santa Clara 89-79. Steve Hawes' 22 points lifted Washington to an 86-73 victory over Oregon State and Kentucky, with Jim Andrews contributing 34 points, crushed Vanderbilt 106-80.

At NHL All-Star Game

Martin Draws Attention

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Silver Anniversary of the National Hockey League All-Star game tonight will be without two of the game's fabled names, Gordie Howe and Jean Beliveau.

But Richard Martin of the Buffalo Sabres, at 20 the youngest player in the 8:35 p.m. EST, game at Minnesota's Metropolitan Sports Center, is drawing as much attention as a Howe or Beliveau.

The 5-foot-11, 165-pound left wing, leading candidate for rookie of the year, is scoring at a greater clip than any first-year player before him.

Howe got seven goals his first season, Beliveau 13, Bobby Orr 13 and Bobby Hull 13 in their first seasons.

With 33 goals and 22 assists, Martin appears certain to break the rookie scoring record set in 1970-71 by teammate Gil Perreault, 1971 winner of the Calder Cup rookie of the year award after scoring 38 goals and 34 assists.

Martin was drafted out of junior hockey last season after he set a record 71 goals in the Ontario Hockey Association.

Martin said he has felt little pressure as goal totals soar.

"The most pressure I had was after about 10 games," said Martin. "I was doing okay, but we weren't winning. I just didn't feel right. I was pressing, trying to do too many things. But (Buffalo coach) Punch Imlach noticed it and said, 'Look relax, play your game and don't worry about anything.' That's when it started rolling and rolling."

Martin's 55 points rank him seventh in NHL scoring, and put him on tonight's powerful East offensive that is led by Boston's Phil Esposito with 39 goals and 41 assists and New York's Jean Ratelle with 28 goals and 51 assists.

The West, trying to take its second straight victory after winning 2-1 in Boston last year, is dominated by nine Chicago Black Hawks. Bobby Hull is the West scoring leader with 35 goals and 27 assists.

Also joining Martin as first-year all-stars are the East's Rod Seiling of New York; Paul Henderson, Toronto, and starting goalie Ken Dryden, Montreal, and the West's Garry Unger, St. Louis; Ross Lonsberry, Los Angeles and Simon Nolet, Philadelphia.

Chicago shutout artist Tony Esposito and Minnesota's Gump Worsley will share goal-tending honors for the West.

West Coach Billy Reay of Chicago is expected to start Hull, Stan Mikita of Chicago and Bill Goldsworthy of Minnesota at forwards; Esposito at goal, and Chicago defenseman Pat Stapleton and Bill White.

Al MacNeil, the 1971 Montreal coach now in the minors, is expected to open with Dryden in goal, the high-scoring New York front line of Vic Hadfield, Ratelle and Rod Gilbert and defensemen Bobby Orr of Boston and Brad Park of New York. Gilles Villeneuve of New York is the other goalie.

Fregosi Ready for Fun

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim Fregosi took a break from the banquet circuit Monday to reassure the Mets that playing for New York will be fun and games.

"It'll be fun to play for a team that wants to win games," Fregosi said in his first interview as a Met. "I always thought I was a winning player and now I have a chance to prove it."

The 30-year-old Fregosi, who bears a striking resemblance to Joe Namath with the mod haircut he sports, has a big adjustment to make as a Met. Manager Gil Hodges has tabbed Fregosi for third base duty and you know what's happened to his predecessors.

The Mets have tried 45 other players at that position and none could ever brag about longevity at the hot corner. This puts Fregosi on the spot since he's only played shortstop in 10 years of major league baseball.

Fregosi is in the second season of a three-year contract signed with the California Angels and acquired by the Mets. It calls for an estimated $90,000 a season, making Fregosi second to pitcher Tom Seaver as the highest salaried Met.

He batted .233 last season, with five homers and 33 runs batted in. The figures aren't indicative of Fregosi's ability, however. He was hobbled by a growth on his right foot, between the second and third toes and missed three weeks of the season. The gutsy infielder played several months with a cutout shoe to relieve the pressure before deciding to undergo corrective surgery.

Fregosi came to the Mets in a deal that included fireball pitcher Nolan Ryan going to the Angels. The transaction "could be the turning point" in Fregosi's career.

"There seems to be a victory spirit on this club, from what I gather talking to some of the Mets," Fregosi explains. "We had problems on the Angels last year. Maybe some of them were blown out of proportion, but others were real."

"The Angels were a club that was supposed to win the division title. Instead, the players began blaming everybody else when things went wrong. If they had asked themselves what they were doing wrong and how they could correct the situation, we may have made a good run for the championship."

Fregosi said that Alex Johnson "could get on a guy like nobody else. You have to do something to hurt him to make him fight."

"Johnson got bogged down in spring training. He thought Lefty Phillips was playing him too much. Alex would spend four hours in the batting cage but the only time he'd throw a ball was in a game."

"Fregosi said he never saw the gun that Johnson allegedly kept in the locker room and resulted in Johnson's suspension by the Angels.

"I think the whole thing was blown out of proportion," Fregosi stressed, "but the report of what happened was enough to bug a guy. It affects the players' outlook. You go to a game and you wonder what's going to happen today, instead of concentrating on what you know about the opposing pitcher."

Fregosi considers New York one of the most knowledgeable sports cities in the United States, people who come to watch a baseball game instead of plunking down money for a sun bath ticket.

"Angel fans never get excited," Fregosi said in admonishing the California crowd. "They show no emotion. A player does his best when there's 40,000 people cheering, like you find at Shea Stadium."

The Mets used the occasion of the Fregosi interview to announce the signing of right-handed pitchers Jim McAndrew and Charlie Williams and first baseman-outfielder Mike Jorgenson. The Mets now have five regulars in the fold, including Fregosi and southpaw Jerry Koosman.

IS IT SPRING YET? — Jim Fregosi (C) six-time American League All-Star shortstop, tries on a New York Mets uniform Monday. Welcoming Fregosi to the Mets are (L-R) Tug McGraw, Charlie Williams, Jim McAndrew and Manager Gil Hodges (standing). The New York club acquired Fregosi in December from California. Williams and McAndrew, both righthanded pitchers, signed contracts after weekend negotiations at Shea Stadium. (UPI)

Debbie Retires At Age 19

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Debbie Meyer, who reached peak in her young swimming career in 1968 when she won three Olympic gold medals, can't force herself to make another try in the 1972 games.

The 19-year-old Miss Meyer announced her retirement from competition Monday because "I couldn't get myself back up again."

"The only swimmer in history to win three individual gold medals in a single Olympics, she had been a leading candidate for a berth on the U.S. team for the summer competition in Munich, Germany."

"It's getting to be a chore," she said, "and that's what I don't want."

Last September, Miss Meyer abandoned talk of retirement and said she would become "a robot again" for the 1972 Olympics.

"I told myself I'm going to get in there and do it," she said Monday. "I had a couple of really good workouts two weeks before Christmas."

She said she usually has a few bad days after a layoff, but after the holidays "I had three weeks of bad days."

Her retirement ended a short but sparkling career. At the age of 16, she became the youngest person ever to win the Sullivan Award, given annually to America's outstanding amateur athlete.

In the 1968 Mexico City games, she won gold medals in the 200, 400 and 800 meter freestyle events and was named woman athlete of the year by Russia's Pravda newspaper. She has broken world freestyle swimming records 19 times.

"Swimming has been a tremendous and exciting experience for me," she said in announcing her retirement. "If I had it to do again, I'd do it all over."

She said the most valuable experience was the opportunity to compete under her coach, Sherm Chavoor of the Arden Hills Swim Club.

A sophomore at American River College, Miss Meyer said she plans to spend much of her spare time skiing.

No Alibis Heard From Jeff Mullins

CHICAGO (AP) — Golden State's Jeff Mullins is not an alibi artist. The Warrior guard netted 43 points in a losing cause Monday night but passed it off saying:

"I had a hot hand against the Bulls tonight, and I thought we all played unselfishly. But when you win 11 straight, you don't have to alibi to the National Basketball Association."

The Bulls ended the Warriors' 11-game skien, which extended back before Christmas, with a 110-105 victory.

The action was the only game played Monday in either the National or American Basketball Associations.

Coach Dick Motta quick to praise the performance of his Bulls.

"When we shoot the way we did, we are almost unbeatable," Motta said. "We took 99 shots to just 80 for the Warriors."

Motta got an excellent performance from Chet Walker, who scored 29 points to lead the Bulls and held Golden State's Cazzie Russell to 13. Russell has been averaging 24 points per game this season.

Chicago opened up an 11-point bulge at 67-56 early in the third quarter after taking a 59-54 halftime lead.

But Mullins led the Warriors back into the thick of it, tying the score 74-74 later in the same quarter. When the buzzer sounded ending the period the Bulls again led, 86-80.

The Chicago guards then got

Olympics Fight Commercialism

TOKYO (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today the Olympic movement "is an ideal spirit to combat commercialism and politics," but he shed no light on which skiers might be kept out of next week's Olympics on grounds of commercialism.

"We are living in a materialistic world," Brundage told some 100 newsmen at a Japan Press Club luncheon.

Asked specifically about some skiers, including top Austrian competitors, Brundage said, "I will reserve my comment until after the eligibility committee meeting. I still don't know which athlete is competing in what event."

The eligibility committee meets Wednesday in Tokyo.

Aside from questions of barring skiers because of past advertisements into the Winter Olympics opening Feb. 3 in Sapporo, northern Japan, will be ineligible.

"There are only two different kinds of sports contestants," he said. "The one who loves sports as a recreation and the other for financial reasons."

There has been some talk of holding a separate world ski championships at Sapporo if the dispute between Brundage and the International Ski Federation over skiers' eligibility cannot be straightened out.

THE START — Kingston High School's swimming team had a rare treat Monday in the form of a "home" meet. It was held in the Eling Gym pool at New Paltz State (the start of one of the races is shown above) and was the first of two such "home" encounters on the schedule for the undefeated and pool-less Maroons. Maroons Nearing DCSL Swim Title

Kingston High School is right at the doorstep of a Dutchess County Scholastic League championship in this, its first year of competition in the loop.

The sport in question is swimming and Monday in the Eling Gym pool on the New Paltz State campus, Coach Ron Gabriel's Maroons swamped Roy C. Ketcham of Wappingers Falls, 69-26, to move to within one match of copping the DCSL title.

It was KHS' third win in the league without loss and since the only meet remaining on the league calendar is against Wappingers on Feb. 7, it appears certain that the Maroons will indeed stake claim to the Dutchess County crown.

Kingston is 5-0 overall.

Once again Claude Landerway, a junior who is in his first year of swimming with KHS, was the standout for the Maroons.

By the time Claude got into the water the meet was all but settled. However, Landerway still took the spotlight by winning the 400-yard freestyle, then coming right back to take the 100-yard backstroke.

"He wanted to see if he could go two in a row," explained Coach Gabriel. Landerway is now 10-0 on the season.

Three of the Maroon swimmers recorded their best times of the year. Kent St. John sizzled to a 50-yard freestyle win in 24.8; Bob Winrow took the 200-yard individual medley in 2:39.9; and John Edwards won the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:11.6.

Kingston also received strong performances from Jay Rifenburg, winner of the 200 yard freestyle, Jack Abernathy, first in the 100 yard butterfly, and both relay teams.

The newcomers registered their first career points, Dawn Sleight in the 200 yard freestyle, and John Shultz in the 100 yard freestyle.

About the only disappointing thing from the Kingston standpoint was the appearance of only one official for the fourth time this season. Each meet is supposed to have two but, for an unexplained reason, one failed to show up.

Next for Kingston is an expected tough battle with Newburgh on Monday.

Kingston 69 — Ketcham 26
200 med. relay — Kingston (Charles Lang, John Edwards, Dennis Roth, Jim Gogg), 1:38.4.
200 freestyle — Jay Rifenburg (K), 2:39.9.

50 freestyle — Kent St. John (K), 24.8.

Kingston Tops OCS Skiers

ELLENVILLE, Thursday, the Maroons seek their fourth straight win with Monticello offering the competition. The meeting will be at Davos again, and Coach Tony Badalato is expecting strong opposition, particularly from the Monticello lassies.

Pete Fowler and Nancy Kolln were first place finishers for the second time this season. Fowler leading the boys' 166-213 win and Kolln pacing the Kingston girls to a 222-245 edge.

Jim Woodward nailed down second place for the Maroon skiers. It was the third time he and Fowler have taken the top two spots this year. Kingston swept eight of the top 10 spots with Ontario's John Shehan, in eighth place, the ranking Indian.

Fowler's winning time was 31.55.

Robin MacFadden of OCS placed second in the girls' event in 40.55 behind Nancy Kolln's 37.7. Cindy Lowe placed third and Chris Joyette was fifth for Kingston.

Other top Kingston finishers were Mimi Brown in sixth and Andrea Meyer in eighth.

Barber Wins at Archer's Game

By BILL COLEMAN

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Miller Barber and George Archer differed in their opinions on the types of playoff when golf matches are tied at the end of regulation play so they played both kinds and Barber beat Archer at the one Archer said he preferred.

It started off as a common 18-hole playoff after Barber and Archer tied at the end of 72 holes in the Dean Martin Tucson Open, but it ended up as a history making event as Barber rolled in a 20-foot birdie putt on the 21st hole of the playoff.

Midway through the first nine holes of the playoff it looked as though Barber might run off with it as Archer, usually a deadly putter, seemed to lose the touch.

At the end of 10 holes Barber was three strokes ahead. Archer could only gain one stroke back when Barber double bogeyed the par three 12th hole.

However on the 16th and 17th holes, Archer hit two birdies and all of a sudden it was all even going to the 18th hole. Both golfers parred the 18th and for the first time ever had to go back to the 15th hole for a sudden death playoff after an 18-hole playoff.

Both Barber and Archer parred the first two holes of sudden death and then Barber sank his birdie putt on the 17th to win the $30,000 first prize. Archer took home $17,100 for his second place finish. Added to that was $5,000 each from the network which televised the playoff.

After Archer and Barber tied at the end of 72 holes, Archer said he did not like 18-hole playoffs and preferred sudden death. Barber said he felt 18-hole playoffs were more fair because one lucky shot could the finish to catch a flight to California, his home.

After getting his winner's check, Barber said both he and Archer, who both shot par 72 in the 18-hole part of the playoff, were tired and that probably caused the high scores.

"After four days of competition you are beat," Barber said. "Not so much physically as mentally. Being up mentally for five straight days without a letdown is hard on anyone."

Archer, who said he disliked the long playoffs because it kept him from getting ready only for a tournament the next week, left immediately after 1964.

Barber's Tucson title is his seventh career championship and gives him a career earning total of $600,470. His last win was the Phoenix Open last year.

Barber now has won three of four playoffs in his career. His only loss came to Gary Player in the Pensacola, Fla., Open in 1964.

HAPPY DAYS — Miller Barber and his caddy do a dance as the ball falls in and Barber wins the Tucson Open. Barber was tied with George Archer at the end of regulation play Sunday. They were tied at the end of the 18-hole playoff when they went into sudden death. Barber scored his winning bird on the third hole. (UPI)

Learned Lesson

By UPI

Winning on the road is the key to success, at least as far as the national rankings go, and that's a lesson Denny Crum learned well under UCLA's John Wooden.

In his first year at Louisville, Crum has taught his Cardinals well enough to achieve five road victories this year, the last four in succession, enroute to a 12-1 record and third place in the UPI coaches' ratings.

Kiwanis, JCs Tied in Biddy

KINGSTON

Kiwanis and the Jaycees continued their pillage of the Biddy Basketball League and remained tied for the league lead with 7-1 records.

Kiwanis squeaked by DeMicco's 30-29 behind Vince Ferraro's 11 points, while the Jaycees bombed Dunham 44-13 and edged Spartan Pool 33-32. Bill Robertson collected 18 points in the Dunham romp and hit nine along with Bill Reynolds to help down the Spartans. Greg Lindsay fired up 19 markers, but the Spartan rush fell short.

Lindsay hit 20 against the Recs, but again in a futile cause as Vic Costello pumped 22 to pace the Recs to a 51-26 win, their first of two. The second match was closer, and it was Emile Jordan's 19 points that turned the tide in a 32-29 victory over KPA.

The Lions also victimized KPA, scoring a 36-28 triumph behind Roy Olsen's game-high 23-point effort. Steve Richter paced the losers with 21.

The scoring: Kiwanis (30) — Ferraro 11, endyke 4, Howell 2, Sapp 1.

Jordan 9, Mayhood 7, Gallo 3.

DCSL to Improve Grid Quality

SAUGERTIES

Fred Seither of Saugerties High, newly elected chairman of the committee of the DCSL's Central Section football coaches, has outlined the initial goals of the organization that is trying to improve the quality of high school football in the area.

The establishment of official game and team statistics rates high on the list Seither explained the main purpose of this was to aid in public relations and facilitate better publicity throughout the league. Up-to-date standings and individual statistics as well will be kept according to official standards and distributed regularly to local news media.

A second result of the standardized data would aid in a more accurate selection of the annual all-star team. "We're trying to set guidelines for this because we never had any set methods in the past," said Seither, "and many of the coaches have been unhappy with previous results."

"We want to work with the officials more closely," the Saugerties coach continued, citing many complaints raised about the subject in the past. He revealed discussions were being held to determine the possibility of establishing a mutual rating system between officials and coaches. Poor officiating and unsportsmanlike coaching created a need for such a system, felt Seither, who saw the matter as a "two-way street."

The organization is composed of the head football coaches and their assistants from the nine schools in the Central Section. Present members include: Bob Bragg of Roosevelt, Frank King of Arlington, Tony Badalato of Kingston, Joe Giglio of John Jay, Ken Lynn of Ketcham, Bill Maher of Poughkeepsie, Dick Beams of Lourdes, Seither and the to-be-named coach from Beacon.

Matters of scheduling, sectional competition and pre-season practice are slated to be examined by the committee in the coming year which will meet on a monthly basis during the off-season.

The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 23, at 8 p.m. at the Kitchen Restaurant in Hyde Park.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

PARTY? (Q.) I am a high school senior going with a college freshman. We met at a church party about seven months ago and have grown to be very warm friends.

He lives in an apartment across town and has a roommate. Last week he suggested that some night soon I come to his place and we could have a party. I could fix dinner for two and afterward we could just sit on the sofa and enjoy the nice warm glow of the fireplace.

He said we could arrange a time when his roommate would be gone and there would be just we two together. I thought it was a great idea and said yes. But later I got thinking about what might happen and I told him maybe we had better wait a while.

I think I love him, but I am just not ready to make love yet. What do you think?—Invited in Illinois.

(A.) I think you were very smart to change your mind. Completely aside from "the way it looks," a girl should avoid situations in which she may be tempted to do more than she ought to do or really wants to do.

This goes not just for being alone with a boy in a house or apartment. It goes also for parking and for extended or much repeated sessions on a living room sofa even when parents are at home.

It is much healthier for teen-age boys and girls to be in groups and active than for to be paired off and idle with nothing but the magnetism between them to occupy their minds.

ARM CARE: (Q.) When I was 13 the hair on my arms bothered me and I started shaving it. I'm 18 now and realize that was a big mistake. I have tried letting it grow out. It looks awful. It's long and heavy. Can you help me, or will I have to keep shaving my arms all my life?—Hairly in Ohio.

(A.) You know now that no girl should ever shave her arms. Legs, yes, but not arms.

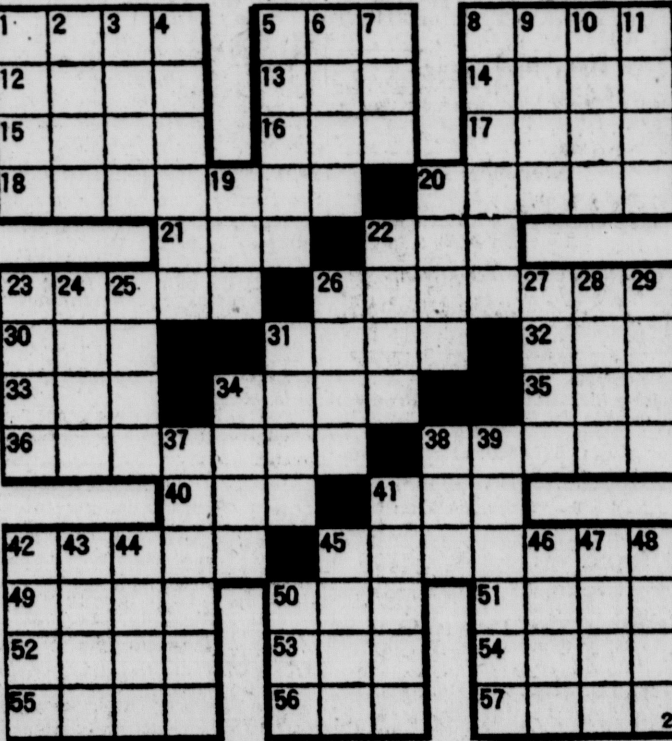

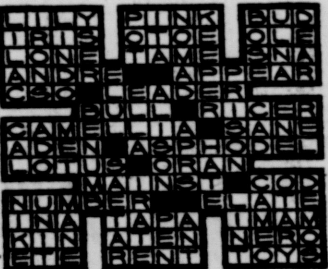

There is no easy way to get your arm hair back to its natural state. Go to a dermatologist and get his advice about the best procedure in your specific case. Bleaching will probably be a part of his advice to you.

Another Undersea Special

NBC will launch "Return to Peyton Place" as a daytime serial on April 3. Efforts are being made to bring back as many of the original players as possible from the old ABC nighttime serial. A hunt is in progress for a new Allison MacKenzie, who was played by Mia Farrow. It will replace "Bright Promise."

Judge Threatens Secrecy At Father Berrigan Trial

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The judge at the conspiracy trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six other antiwar activists has threatened to bar newsmen from the jury selection process and impose secrecy on the proceedings.

"I'm not telling the news media what to do," U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman said Monday as the jury selection began.

He urged, however, that "all names, questions and responses be kept secret until the jury is sworn, and then you can publish it whenever you see fit."

"I think it is in the province of the court, if you violate it (the request), to continue the voir dire in camera"—questioning prospective jurors secretly in chambers.

Herman said early publication could prejudice his efforts to obtain an unbiased, unharassed jury.

The high-ceilinged, modern courtroom seats 80 spectators. Three newsmen now are permitted to cover the jury selection proceedings—representatives of the Associated Press, United Press International and the Harrisburg Patriot-News.

After the first day the original panel of 175 was trimmed to 82, with 38 of those excused, claiming they had formed prejudicial opinions and could not render an impartial judgment.

Berrigan and the other defendants are accused of plotting to kidnap presidential advisor Henry Kissinger, bomb heat tunnels under certain Washington, D.C., buildings, smuggle contraband in and out of the federal prison, and raid draft board offices in various cities around the nation.

A group of 46 men and women, now seated in the courtroom, answer more general questions from the judge today before individual examination by lawyers begins.

The 48-year-old Berrigan, a self-styled revolutionary priest, told a newsmen during a courtroom lull, before federal marshals stopped him from talking, that there was indeed a discussion among some of the defendants of a possible kidnapping.

"There was no planning," he insisted, however. Then he added:

"Part of any discussion, if it is to be real, is to investigate the feasibility of it" and Berrigan indicated that members of his peace movement apparatus had done that. "Millions of people have these kinds of ideas at some time or another," Berrigan said in the first interview he has given in nearly two years. "It doesn't mean they would act or want to act, but why shouldn't they think about it and maybe do something about it and even investigate it?"

Asked whether he believed he would win the case, Berrigan replied: "It's not a priority of ours to gain acquittal, but to conduct a trial and get the issue before the American people."

Little Interest From U.S. On United Nations Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has made its cool attitude toward the United Nations even more evident by its lack of response to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's effort to raise some quick money for the debt-ridden organization.

Waldheim, in office only a month, spent all of Monday with President Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and congressional leaders, going over the U.N.'s financial suffering.

Although Waldheim told newsmen the response to his position was positive from the President on down, U.S. officials indicated the Austrian diplomat may have been wearing rose-colored glasses.

"The United States isn't interested in bailing the U.N. out of its hole this time," one government official said. "We're going to wait for the people who dug the hole."

In more diplomatic tones, State Department spokesman Charles Bray made the same point Monday when he told newsmen it is too early to characterize the U.S. response to Waldheim's request that U.N. members advance $20 million in contributions to tide the world body over this year.

The administration first "would like to have the opportunity to see the response from other members" before deciding its own course of action, Bray said.

He added that the large U.N. debt is more the responsibility of other members, particularly those he indicated were to blame for the world crises that led to expensive U.N. peace-keeping missions.

The debt, estimated variously at $65 million by Waldheim and $150 million by Bray, is largely the result of failure by the Soviet Union, several East European nations and France to pay their share of the peace-keeping costs.

Waldheim said he is seeking support for his plan from all other members and only came to Washington first because the United States is the host nation to the U.N.

Although the Nixon administration is aloof to the $20-million request, it is sympathetic to Waldheim's general effort to

Prediction...Tax Hike Inevitable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's record deficit spending makes a tax increase inevitable next year, regardless of who is in the White House, according to one influential congressman.

The prediction came from George H. Mahon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, during an hour-long floor debate triggered Monday by Nixon's $246.3 billion budget—with its third straight year of red ink spending.

The Texas Democrat said it would be "categorically" necessary to raise taxes next year, regardless of whether the nation has a Democratic or Republican president, "to avert fiscal collapse."

"We've got to do something before we go over the cliff," Mahon said.

Nixon forecast a $25.5 billion deficit for the 12 months beginning July 1, on top of an estimated shortage of $38.8 billion for the current business year and $23 billion during the previous year. The $38.8 billion figure for the current year is the biggest since World War II.

Mahon conceded that no presidential candidate, including Nixon, would advocate raising taxes in an election year. "But what I am saying," he added, "is that it cannot be delayed beyond 1973."

House Speaker Carl Albert also attacked the budget proposal, saying the President "is on the wrong track" for recommending spending cuts in some areas of public health, housing, education, antipollution and economic development.

But House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan called the budget "a balanced, positive and constructive program to heal the economic wounds of war and deal with this nation's pressing domestic programs."

One of the two GOP challengers for the presidential nomination, Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, said the deficit spending "will place a needless burden on the taxpayers of this country." And another pres-

Czechoslovakia Follows Soviet Union, Recognizes Bangladesh as Independent

DACCA (AP) — Czechoslovakia quickly followed the Soviet Union today in recognizing Bangladesh and other nations were expected to follow suit.

CTK, the Czechoslovak news agency, said the Prague government recognized Bangladesh as an independent and sovereign state and wants to exchange ambassadors.

Officials of the young nation expressed great pleasure at Moscow's recognition.

The Soviet consul-general to Dacca conveyed his government's decision to Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman in Tangail, where he was attending a ceremony. President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin telegraphed Sheikh Mujib: "We convey to you and to the people of Bangladesh friendly wishes of peace, well-being and success in consolidating the state sovereignty of your country, in building a peaceful democratic republic."

"It is quite natural that the Soviet Union has come out with this great decision to accord us due recognition," Foreign Minister A. S. Azad told newsmen. He added that he hoped recognition from Washington would come "sooner than expected."

But the most recent word from officials in the U.S. capital was that recognition was not even under consideration.

The United States backed Pakistan in the two-week war with India in December and the Soviet Union backed India, which entered the fight to establish the independence of Bangladesh.

Mujib was in Tangail, 50 miles northwest of Dacca, to accept the arms surrender Monday of Bangladesh's most flamboyant guerrilla leader in a ceremony dramatizing government control over the countryside. It was Mujib's first trip outside Dacca since he returned Jan. 10 from 9½ months in Pakistani prisons.

Nearly 3,000 weapons were stacked for Mujib's inspection by Abdul Kader Siddique, also known as the Tiger of Tangail.

But no arrangements for collecting the arms were in evidence, and the government apparently relied on Siddique's good will not to give them back to his men.

On Jan. 17, Mujib gave all guerrillas 10 days to lay down their arms and join a new national militia. The deadline has since been extended until the end of this month.

Mujib told the gathering he wants a "Nuernberg type trial" for Pakistanis responsible for mass murder in Bangladesh since last March. And Radio Bangladesh announced today that President Syed Nazrul Islam has ordered a special tribunal to try collaborators who aided the Pakistani army in "committing genocide." Mujib estimates 3 million Bengalis were killed.

Meanwhile, Pakistani President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto arrived in Ankara for two days of talks with Turkish leaders during which he hoped to convince them to withhold recognition of Bangladesh to give him more time to attempt reconciliation with what was once Pakistan's eastern half.

Sources said that before Bhutto flew to Ankara, the Soviet ambassador in Karachi told him of Moscow's recognition of Bangladesh and invited him to visit Moscow.

Bhutto also softened his crackdown against Pakistan's wealthy families Monday and extended to Feb. 15 his deadline for the return of millions of dollars he says are salted away abroad.
